THE POLISH QUESTION.

The French Government Taking Action in Favor of the Poles.

PROGRESS OF THE REVOLUTION.

A Summary of News by the Edinburgh.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL AFFAIRS.

Portland, Me., Friday, March 20.

The Norwegian, Capt. McMasters, which left Liverpool at 11 A. M. of the 5th, and Londonderry on the 6th inst., arrived at Portland at 2:20 P. M. to-day.

The Europa reached Liverpool at 4 P. M. of the 4th inst.

The City of Manchester leaves Liverpool as an extra vessel on Saturday, the 7th of March. The steamer Isis also leaves for New-York the same day.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The Times (city article) says, the proposal of the Washington Government, for issuing letters of marque, with other indications, have revived the impression that a certain portion of the Washington Cabinet was endeavoring to obtain a solution of the existing difficulty by forcing on a foreign war, so as to enable the breaking up of the Union to be attributed to the overwhelming power of the jealous European aristocracy. This theory alone explains Seward's determination to insist that the Federal power has met with nothing but success; and that there is no Southern insurrection.

The same writer points out the total impossibility of conducting any sound business in New-York under the violent fluctuations of gold now experienced, and expresses the fear that movements for the future will be still more rapid and violent.

A grand dejunier was given at Manchester on the 4th, in honor of Capt. Lunt and the George Griswold, and formal addresses of thanks were presented. Among the toasts drank was one in honor of the New-York contributors, proposed by Sir J. K. Shuttleworth, and responded to by Mr. Lord, the American Consul.

In the House of Commons on the 4th, the first important division of the session took place upon the bill to abolish certain declarations as qualifications for office. The Government supported and the Conservatives opposed the measure, which was carried by three majority.

FRANCE.

La France asserts that the Cabinet Council at St. Cloud resolved to act diplomatically at St. Petersburg in favor of Poland.

The Bourse was steady. Rentes 70f. 20c.

SPAIN.

The Ministerial crisis had terminated. Miraflores was President of the Council and Minister of Foreign Affairs. The Chambers will shortly be re-opened.

POLAND.

There is nothing new as to the movements of the insurgents. The latest letters from Cracow are favorable to the Poles. Prince Domirski had been killed whilst cutting his way through some Russians who surrounded him and several refugees. The Governor-General of Wilna had issued an address to the peasants, appealing to them to oppose the agitators, to the arrests of guilty parties, and deliver them up to the authorities.

The appointment of Gen. DeBerg as Commander of the Russian troops in Poland, is considered indicative of a stern and unrelenting determination to crush the revolt.

In London an influential meeting of noblemen and members of Parliament resolved to memorialize the Lord Mayor to call a meeting to express sympathy with the Poles.

LATEST VIA LONDONDERRY.

The Paris correspondent of the Times quotes a letter from Warsaw, stating that the Russian Government fears to send treasure from St. Petersburgh to Warsaw in consequence of frequent insurgent attacks on railway trains, and the Warsaw Treasury was empty.

The Paris correspondent of the Times says the English and French Governments have agreed as to the tenor of the note to Prussia relative to Poland. Allusion is made in it to the various partitions to which that country has been a victim, and regret for them is expressed. That, however, it says, is a thing of the past, and there is now no help for it. But both Governments speak as earnestly as diplomacy allows of their hopes for the fulfillment of the solemn promise made the Poles by granting them liberal institutions. Austria also is as emphatic in the same sense, but discreetly says nothing.

The royal squadron, with the Princess Alexandra, arrived at Margate at 11 o'clock on the night of the 5th.

The Times city article says the demand for discount at the Bank is again active, and in open market the general rate is but fractionally below the Bank minimum. Consols were heavy, yesterday, in connection with the settlement.

It is stated that the Rothschilds have concluded negotiations for a loan to the Italian Government.

THE NEWS BY THE EDINBURGH.

The following is a summary of the news sent out by the Edinburgh, which left Liverpool on the 4th:

Le Nord states that Mr. Slidell had just had an interview with M. Drouyn de Lhuys, in the course of which mention was made of Mr. Seward's recent dispatch. Mr. Slidell is said not to have concealed his surprise that Mr. Seward could think that the seceding States were willing to send members to the Washington Congress.

It is also reported (says Le Nord) that the Government of Richmond has just contracted at Paris a loan for 60,000,000 francs.

A deputation had waited upon Mr. Adams in London, and presented him with an address signed by more than 13,500 citizens of Birmingham, sympathizing with the Anti-Slavery policy of President Lincoln.

In the House of Lords, Lord Stratheden's notice, in favor of recognition of the South whenever France is ready to concur in the movement, had not been brought forward.

The Times strongly condemns the motion, deprecates discussion on the subject, and urges continued strict neutrality.

In the House of Commons, Mr. Laird asked if the Government was informed of ships preparing for the Confederates in England, similar to the Alabama.

Mr. Layard said the attention of the Government had been called to more than one vessel of the kind, but no evidence has been yet furnished to enable the Government to interfere. Strict orders had been given for all suspected vessels to be closely watched.

The motion by Mr. Fitzgerald, for the production of all the correspondence relating to the war and its effects, including that with the Confederate Commissioner, was adopted.

It is reported that strong efforts are making to divert the Galway line to Canadian ports.

Mr. Inman entered a strong protest against the restoration of the subsidy as unjust to his line.

Efforts were making to have some of the relief fund applied to the emigration of cotton operatives.

The Polish question was unchanged.

It is believed that the Prussian Government yielded to the European pressure in favor of non-interference. Less panic and apprehension as to the results were likely to ensue.

The Prussian Chamber voted by an overwhelming majority in favor of neutrality.

It was rumored that Russia was prepared to grant an amnesty and reforms.

Accounts of the insurrection are most contradictory. According to one, Langiewicz beat the Russians after five hours' fighting, near Malagoszec. Another version claims a victory for the Russians, and the flight of Langiewicz and his insurgents.

Other insurgent successes are reported.

Cardinal Antonelli had tendered his resignation, owing to the arrest of his attaché for political complicity.

It was stated that Gen. Forey had made a demand for more men and material for Mexico, and that the demand could not be complied with.

A Lyons letter states that the American war has not only affected the cotton and silk manufactures of France, but other branches of industry are suffering from the same cause.

Advices from Madrid state that it was supposed the Marquis of Havana would be Minister of War, and Señor Sierra Minister of Finance, under Miraflores.

The passport system is abandoned in Spain.

A St. Petersburgh telegram says serfdom in Russia expired on the 3d. A Te Deum was sung in all the Russian churches in celebration of the event. Complete tranquillity prevailed, notwithstanding the alarming rumors current.

The Grand Duke Constantine had been appointed Commander-in-Chief of Poland.

The Levant Herald announces that a compromise has been brought about in the Montenegrin question, upon the understanding that forts should be constructed at the termini of the military road through Montenegro, instead of frequent blockhouses.

The English mail steamer from South America had reached Lisbon, whence we have the following by telegraph: Rio de Janeiro, Sunday, Feb. 8.

It is reported that the Confederate loan of £3,000,000 will be at once raised as 8 per cent. stock at 77.

JOHN WILKINS, Post Surgeon.
Richmond, Va., March 18, 1863.

The steamboat State of Maine left for Washington, D. C., with the returned prisoners on board.

The Richmond Enquirer of March 18 contains the following interesting news:

"The municipal election took place to-day in Fredericksburgh, though under the guns of Gen. Hooker. M. Slaughter was chosen Mayor.

The conscript officers have been quite busy for a few days hereabout, hauling in 'the nice young men.'

A considerable force of the enemy, consisting of cavalry and artillery, made a demonstration yesterday on the ford over the Rappahannock near and south of Orange and Alexandria Railroad. The movement was anticipated, and Gen. Stuart advanced sufficient force to hold them in check, at least, until a proper time for more cheerful greeting.

Fighting was in progress yesterday, and it was reported from Gordonsville that the enemy had succeeded in crossing. The result of the engagement did not reach us.

Later.—The Yankees have crossed the Upper Rappahannock in strong force, with cavalry and artillery, advancing toward Gordonsville on a raid."

A Charleston, S. C., correspondent says the captured gunboat Isaac P. Smith, now called the Stono, has been repaired, and is now in good fighting trim. She will be the flag-ship of Commodore Ingraham.

REBEL NEWS VIA FREDERICKSBURGH.

GOLD SELLING FOR 650.

The Rebels Preparing to Fall Back from the Rappahannock.

Headquarters Army of the Potomac,
Friday, March 20.

Notwithstanding the quotations of gold in the Richmond papers, it is known here that from $6 to $6 50 in Confederate notes have been offered within the past two days in Fredericksburgh; and, moreover, $2 25 in Virginia bank notes, and $3 50 in Confederate notes are freely paid for our national currency.

The Richmond Examiner of yesterday has an extraordinary leader, the tone of which is evidently intended to prepare the public mind of the South for serious reverses to the Confederate arms on the line of the Rappahannock. It commences with the following significant language:

"The active operations of the chief Federal army under Hooker, are now commenced, and either a decisive battle, or the retreat of Gen. Lee, must be the speedy consequence. The latter contingency is possible, but not probable, and another heavy struggle over the line of the Rappahannock may be safely anticipated."

After speculating upon the supposed plan of Gen. Hooker, and the strength and probabilities of success of Gen. Lee's forces, the Examiner remarks: "If, however, the Confederate General's force is not sufficiently numerous to prevent the completion of the manœuvre, it is supposed that no course remains but to fall back upon some point nearer Richmond, and give the enemy battle at a greater distance from his base."

There is nothing of importance from any scene of active operations in the field.

There was a heavy fall of snow here during the day and last night. It is cold now.

A CURIOUS SPEECH FROM GEN. PILLOW.

THE SLAVE POWER OF THE SOUTH.

Correspondence of the Chattanooga Daily Rebel.

Huntsville, Ala., Feb. 25, 1863.

Pillow made an able and interesting speech, on last Monday, to the slaveholders of Madison County, Ala., on the subject of furnishing negro teamsters for Gen. Bragg's army. He showed conclusively that interest, as well as patriotism, should induce every man to use his property to strengthen our army, and to sustain our cause, for, said he, the enemy are now waging a war of plunder, and if our men of property are not now ready and willing to aid our army by all the means in their power, to drive back the enemy, they cannot complain of the Government for not protecting their property.

Let no one, said Pillow, delude himself with the idea that he can, by the avowal of Union sentiments, or by proving false to his country, preserve his property from the ravages of the foe. Their object is to destroy the whole South, respecting the rights and the property of none. Their intention is, as shown by their conduct in Louisiana, to make slaves of the white men of the South. The man of property who now hesitates to use all that he has in the support of the Government, and for the purpose of strengthening our army, is not only evincing his want of principle and patriotism, but is blind to his own self-interest. The poor men have given their sons, the rich men have given their sons, you, all of you, said Gen. Pillow, have given your sons, and now are you unwilling to give a portion of your negroes to serve as teamsters, to take the place of the brave men who would do good service as soldiers, but who are now engaged in driving wagons?

He said the slave power of the South was an element of strength if we would use it properly, but an element of weakness if we did not. The negroes would be well fed, well clothed, and well taken care of in the army, and would be in no danger; in fact, they would be safer in the army than out of it, because then they would not be liable to be carried off by the enemy. Gen. Pillow drew an affecting but truthful picture of the condition of the negroes that had been carried away by the Yankees. He stated that they had taken four hundred negroes from him by force of arms; that he learned they they were now in a deplorable condition, without funds, and suffering from all manner of disease. They were begging to be returned to him, but the cruel enemy would not permit them to come. He said he had sustained heavy losses during this war; that the enemy had taken from him not only his negroes, but they burned up four gin-houses which were worth $10,000 each; they had taken 100,000 pounds of bacon, 2,000 hogs, 500 fine cattle, destroyed his houses in Arkansas, laid waste his plantations, and otherwise injured him in many respects. Our own Government had burned 2,100 bales of his cotton. All this and more he was willing to endure to secure our independence. He said he was ready to lay down his life, rather than submit to the tyranny of the Lincoln Government. Who of you, said he, would not willingly do the same thing?

Some men, he said, through timidity and fear of the loss of property, had permitted themselves to be placed in a position false to themselves and false to their country, and some few, though very few, were traitors at heart. The day has now passed for gaining anything by timidity and submission. All must work, and work energetically, and if we do, we have nothing to fear. He stated that Gen. Sherman had written him a letter, couched in very polite language, offering to return his negroes to him, and to indemnify him for all his losses, if he would abandon the Confederate service. His answer was characteristic of the man. He said: "General, while I thank you for your courteous letter, let me say to you the property your Government has taken from me was my own. Your Government has the power to rob me of it, but it is too poor to buy me." Gen. Pillow's remarks concerning President Davis were eloquent and judicious.

He said, the President was the very man for the position he held; that if he could not conduct us safely through this revolution, no man could; that he was a man of delicate form, but of large brain and patriotic heart, and eminently qualified in every respect for the Chief Executive of this Confederacy; that although he thought the President had not done him justice, yet he preferred him for President to any other man; that we were not now fighting for President Davis, nor any other man, but for our rights as freemen, and that for himself he would, if he had to do it over, vote for Jefferson Davis for President, if he knew that he would place him in a dungeon during this whole war. These patriotic remarks elicited loud applause. The General's speech abounded in sound views and practical suggestions, but I cannot do more than give this brief abstract of what he said, omitting, as I am compelled to do, many of the best portions of his speech.

EXCITING TIMES IN NORTH CAROLINA.

From the Ashville (N. C.) News.

In another column we have referred to the forcible rescue of the prisoner, Franklin, from the jail of Haywood County. Since that article was written, a courier has reached this place in quest of powder, who states that an army of several hundred men from East Tennessee is regularly fortified at the line between Haywood County and Tennessee. Some reports put the number at eleven hundred, but we suppose it hardly so large. The militia of Haywood, to the number of two hundred and fifty, with sixty Cherokee Indians, were holding them in check. Runners had been sent to Gen. Kirby Smith, informing him of the condition of affairs, and asking for assistance. We await further information with anxiety. The locality is about forty-five miles west of this place, and bordering upon the most disloyal portion of East Tennessee; and the force gathered there is composed probably of disaffected men who have fled from their homes to avoid the conscript law.

IMPORTANT FROM PORT ROYAL.

Successes of the Black Brigade in Florida.

Several Important Points and Many Prisoners Captured.

Anti-Copperhead Meetings Among the Soldiers.

Hilton Head, Monday, March 16.

The latest intelligence from the Black Brigade, which is now marching into Florida, is, that they have taken several important points, with many prisoners, and captured large quantities of munitions and supplies, and are still driving the enemy before them.

The Eighty-fifth Pennsylvania held a great indignation meeting on the 12th, denouncing the proceedings of a peace meeting, recently held at their home in Fayette County. Similar meetings are being held in other regiments.

A memorial to the President is being prepared by the soldiers, asking the appointment of Union orators to visit the army occasionally, and also that an Administration journal may be furnished gratuitously to the troops in the field.

A movement is on foot here among the various regiments to raise a fund for the suffering poor of England.

The charges preferred against Col. Osborne, of the Twenty-fourth Massachusetts, have been withdrawn, it appearing that they were all groundless; which restores this popular and accomplished officer to his command.

The United States steamer T. F. Secor, Capt. Alonzo Blanchard, which was Gen. Naglee's flag-ship, will be taken by Gen. Ferry for the same purpose. Her efficient and skillful Captain was presented with a handsome testimonial from Gen. Naglee and Staff prior to their departure.

A Special Commission of the United States Board of Supervising Inspectors of Steamers, consisting of Messrs. J. N. Muller and J. Remington, have been dispatched hither by Secretary Chase to examine into the condition of the steamers in this Department. Ten Government transports and six chartered ones are found unfit for service.

The recent experiment of the Monitors on Fort McAllister has proved of great value, in demonstrating their impregnability and good qualities.

The Adams Express steamer Augusta Dinsmore arrived here on the 13th inst., from New-York, via Beaufort, N. C., with the United States mail and express matter. The Mary Sanford and Mary Boardman, of this line, which were chartered by the Government on their last trip to bring ordnance stores for the iron-clads, left prior to the arrival of the Dinsmore.

The new steamer City of Bath, Capt. Snow, which sprung a leak on her recent trip to Key West, leaves to-day for Baltimore, via Beaufort, N. C., for repairs.

The expected arrival here of another army corps, said to be Burnside's, the departure of which is noticed by the Richmond papers, has created fresh hopes and additional enthusiasm among our troops.

A Charleston paper speaks of the expected arrival in that city of some distinguished military characters, to witness the expected battle at that point.

Amusements.

Academy of Music.—Mr. Maretzek's third Matinée takes place to-day, when Verdi's "Ballo in Maschera" will be repeated for the last time. The distribution is thoroughly excellent, including Mme. Guerrabella, Signor Ortalani, Signor Mazzalini, Signor Bellini, Signor Coletti, &c., in the principal rôles.

Winter Garden.—Mr. Setchell, a low comedian of great unctiousness and ability—who made his rentrée at this establishment on Thursday evening—will appear to-night for the last time as Capt. Cuttle and Mme. Vanderplants. Those of our readers who are fond of a hearty laugh, will find it liberally provided in the two pieces in which this excellent artist appears.

Irving Hall.—Mr. Robert Goldbeck's grand Concert will take place this evening. It is the most important musical event of the season, and introduces a new grand Symphony called "Victoria," by Mr. Goldbeck.

Harrisburgh Municipal Election.

Harrisburgh, Pa., Friday, March 20.

A. L. Roumfort, Democrat, was elected Mayor, to-day, by 38 majority. Democratic loss 250.

Relief for Ireland.—A meeting of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick is to be held at Delmonico's on Monday afternoon to take measures to relieve the starving poor of Ireland.

THE WAR IN THE SOUTHWEST.

Progress of the Siege of Vicksburgh.

A Large Movement of Troops up the Yazoo.

A Brilliant Raid in North Alabama.

Tuscumbia Occupied by Our Cavalry.

Contributions Levied on Wealthy Rebels.

Cincinnati, Friday, March 20.

Advices from Vicksburgh report the health of the army improving. The troops are enthusiastic with the prospect of an immediate engagement.

It is thought that the Lake Providence Canal, opposite Vicksburgh, will prove successful.

There has been a large movement of transports and gunboats up the Yazoo Pass.

The Atlanta Confederacy contains a detailed account of a brilliant and successful raid in North Alabama by the Federal brigade under Col. Corwin. The expedition accompanied by gunboats reached Tuscumbia Feb. 22. The gunboats destroyed two ferry-boats at Tuscumbia, another at Florence, and afterward dropped down below Tuscumbia.

Soon after dark the Federal advance guard dashed into Tuscumbia, and dispersed the rebel cavalry, who fled to the mountains. Col. Corwin occupied the town, and issued a proclamation, levying assessments on wealthy rebels.

On the 25th ult., Col. Corwin proceeded into the interior, taking considerable plunder with him.

Nothing is published concerning the further progress of the raid.

The same paper complains bitterly of the numerous atrocities committed by the Yankee troops.

GEN. ROSECRANS' DEPARTMENT.

Fighting Going on Near Milton.

Murfreesboro, Friday, March 20.

Col. Hall's brigade, of Gen. Reynolds' division, was attacked near Milton to-day by a large force of rebel cavalry. Col. Hall sent word he could hold his own until reinforcements could arrive. Col. Wilder went to his aid with a mounted infantry force.

At last reports quite a heavy engagement was going on.

The rebels have lately been making serious demonstrations from Gen. Morgan's position at Liberty, feeling our lines on the left.

Louisville, Ky., Friday, March 20.

The Nashville train yesterday was thrown off the track by guerrillas by obstructions four miles above Richland Station, and not at Woodburn, as previously stated. The locomotive, tender and two express cars, were smashed. The guerrillas fired into the rear car, containing women and children. They called themselves Morgan's men. The passengers returned the fire, killing one and wounding three guerrillas. One passenger was slightly wounded. The guerrillas commenced paroling at the head of the train, and took away officers' side-arms, rifled their carpet sacks, &c. Adams' Express safe was robbed of its contents; a part was subsequently recovered. The mail on the train was seized, but was recovered. The conductor ran back a mile to Stockade. Soldiers came up at double-quick, recaptured the train and drove off the guerillas, wounding several and taking four prisoners. Gen. Brannon and Lieut. McKee, who were in the rear car, were neither captured or paroled, but are safe at Nashville.

The Rumored Invasion of Kentucky.

Murfreesboro, Tenn., Thursday, March 19.

The rumors heretofore given of the proposed rebel invasion of Kentucky are not groundless. I learn from a Southern man who left Chattanooga on Sunday, that the rebel troops known to have left Virginia did not reinforce Gen. Bragg, but concentrated at Knoxville, Tennessee. Yesterday a body of four hundred rebels crossed the Cumberland at Rowena, Kentucky, and it was reported that a large force was following. It is suspected that the invasion has already begun.

THE KENTUCKY UNION CONVENTION.

Mr. Cravens, of Indiana, Attempts to Make a Copperhead Speech, but is Put Down.

Louisville, Wednesday, March 18, 1863—P. M.

There was a tremendous assemblage of politicians present at the opening of the Union Convention here this morning, and the greatest interest was felt and expressed in connection with the work to be done.

Two-thirds of the members of the Convention are Union men.

In the proceedings this afternoon the utmost harmony and good feeling prevailed, and it was thought that the work would be finished up expeditiously.

Mr. Wickliffe introduced Mr. Cravens, a member of the next Congress from Indiana, to the Convention, who took a position on the floor and made a speech denouncing the present Administration in the most violent manner, eulogizing Mr. Vallandigham and the efforts of his party in their attempts to overthrow the Government.

The greatest confusion ensued among the members before Mr. Cravens had finished speaking, and boisterous expressions of "Put him out!" "Down with the traitor!" "We are Union men!" "Shame on the Copperheads!" were heard from every portion of the House, followed by cheers for the Union.

Mr. Cravens was finally seized by a score or more of men, and forcibly ejected from the building amid the groans and jeers of the excited multitude.

Mr. Cravens, on being introduced, said he felt deeply interested in the proceedings of this Convention. The eyes of Indiana are watching them closely. He desired to see that harmony and true patriotism pervade their deliberations, that will strike terror to the hearts of the enemies of the Republic. [Cheers.] And that will crush out the rebellion, and preserve the Constitution. There were many present who had heretofore belonged to the Democratic and the Whig parties: many who do not now agree with the course Government has taken in putting down the rebellion—[Whisperings were heard: ["He's a Butternut, no Union man," &c.,]—but all are in favor of preserving the Union. Indiana was looking on with intense interest at their action to-day, for much, very much depended upon it. He hoped they would inaugurate a policy which, while it would put down rebellion, would also preserve the Constitutition of the country with all its guarantees. He was a Democrat, and he would tell them that the war could not have lasted twenty-four hours without their aid and assistance. [Cries of "No politics," from one or two voices.] Abraham Lincoln could not have organized the army without the assistance of the Democratic party. The Democratic party he believed was the only party that could save the country, and yet they were denounced and branded as traitors. The excitement, which was apparent all over the Hall, began to show itself, and cries were heard on all hands, "Copperhead," "Butternut," "Put him out," and other expressions of a like character. Mr. Cravens attempted to proceeded, when the confusion and excitement became intense. Members were holding up their hats calling "Order;" others appealing to the Chair to interfere and prevent Mr. Cravens from proceeding. One gentleman mounted the railing and insisted that this was a Union meeting, and that no Butternut should be allowed to speak. His remarks were vociferously cheered. Another delegate appealed to the good sense of the Convention. They were Kentuckians. they had invited Mr. Cravens to address them, and he hoped for the honor of their State and their love of free speech that they would hear him. [Several voices cried out, "You're a Copperhead, too."] [Some one remarked that it was evident that the Convention was divided in sentiment, and he hoped the gentleman to whom the opposition had been made would see the propriety of desisting from speaking any more.] Mr. Cravens all this time was trying to get a word of explanation in, but the confusion and noise drowned his voice. Another delegate appealed to the chair insisting that no Copperhead should be allowed to speak. They did not come here to listen to treasonable speeches.

When the excitement had somewhat subsided, and while many were opposed to allowing Mr. Cravens to speak, some were curious to hear what he would say, and he was finally permitted to speak.

He said, in his allusions to the Democratic party, he had been unfortunate. He was a Union man, and loved his country above all else. He would not have appeared here, had he not been urged to do so by a friend. He would simply make an apology and then retire. He then went on to say, that he was in favor of putting down the rebellion first, and settling other differences afterward.

Voices—"You had better have said that before."

He referred to what our soldiers had done, and were doing, and appealed to the Convention in behalf of the widows and orphans of those whose bones were bleaching upon our plains and fields to crush out the rebellion and stay this awful bloodshed. He had intended saying when he first spoke that parties were nothing compared with the safety of the Union. Come together, then, in the spirit of harmony, and make one more effort to restore the Union as it was under the Constitution. At this point he subsided.

His speech created a good deal of disgust among the delegates, for it was evidently insincere. The gentleman mistook the men he was speaking to, and the Union feeling was too strong to stand his copperhead remarks.

A number of resolutions were presented, and they were referred to the Committee on Resolutions.

Col. Whitaker said he was credibly informed that the hall had a crowd of Butternuts in it. Their room was better than their presence, and he believed much of the trouble of the gentleman from Indiana was created by them.

He moved the appointment of a Sergeant-at-Arms, to exclude all but delegates. It had been hurled in their teeth that Kentuckians cannot defend the border. He thought the party who had made that remark had better go home and attend to his own State. There was more true Union feeling in Kentucky than in Indiana. There would be no need of any Conscript law in Kentucky. She would furnish her quota, as she had done before—Indiana could not say as much. It cost Kentuckians something to be loyal. There had been no differences in the Convention. All was Union and harmony until this man from Indiana threw in that firebrand.

Gen. Leslie Coombs, who had sat too long at dinner, came in and mounted the Chairman's stand, when he commenced speaking of his personal relations with Henry Clay, and the part he took in the war of 1812. He also devoted a portion of his remarks, well seasoned with strong words, to the Abolitionists of the North. The Convention did not want to hear him, and kept continually interrupting him, when he was forced to withdraw.

The Convention soon afterward adjourned.

FROM SAN SALVADOR.

The War with Guatemala—Defeat of Barrios.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

San Salvador, Thursday, Feb. 26, 1863.

After spending several days at Intiapa, about forty leagues from Guatemala, and within thirty leagues of Cuatepeque, around which the Salvadorean army has intrenched itself, Carrera has at last crossed the boundary of the State, and invaded its territory. His force is said not to exceed 6,000, while that of Barrios, at Cuatepeque is fully that number, with a reserve which he can readily command. Gen. Barrios is now with his army, while Gen. Cabañas, his brother-in-law, and one of the most humane as well as valiant Generals in Salvador, occupies his position in the Presidential mansion, as chief of the army here, and the adviser of his Ministers.

Gen. Cabañas, who has seen much service, would doubtless have been in command on the frontier, but for the breaking out anew of a gunshot wound which he received about twenty-two years ago, and for which he is now attended by Dr. Wynne, formerly of your City. He has now so far recovered as to command here, in the event of the enemy's reaching San Salvador, which has been thoroughly intrenched in anticipation of such an event. It is understood that Carrera will respect the persons and property of foreigners, and the consequence is that flags of all descriptions are floating from the house-tops, while those who can claim no such protection are busy in removing their persons and effects without the reach of the enemy's guns. Business is almost entirely suspended; shops are emptied of their goods, streets are barricaded, and the whole topic of conversation is the war. There are no hourly bulletins, as with you, and consequently newsmongers are having a capital time in telling the latest piece of intelligence, which is sure to find a group of ready listeners. One advantage of this condition of things is that its very intensity must wear itself out, and in a month or two, at the furthest, we may expect a termination of the affair one way or the other.

Since the above was written, information has been received that Carrera made seven charges upon the fortifications of Barrios at Cuatepeque during the two days that the fighting continued. He was at last completely routed, and his army fled toward Guatemala, pursued by the cavalry and volunteers, under Gen. Gonzales, leaving behind them a portion of their munitions of war, and among them several cannon, of superior make, which have been taken possession of by the Salvadoreans as trophies of war. This probably ends a war most unjustly provoked by Carrera, which it is to be hoped will result in the loss of his prestige in Guatemala, and his complete overthrow in a country which he has for years so wretchedly misruled.

Conversion of Legal Tender Notes.

Philadelphia, Friday, March 20.

Mr. Jay Cooke, United States Loan Agent, announces the conversion of two millions of legal tenders into the 5-20 Government loan, within the last six days.

The subscription to-day, in New-York, was $310,000; in Philadelphia, $150,000; in Boston, $50,000; in Cincinnati, $100,000; in Pittsburgh, $50,000; in Washington, $20,000; in Cleveland, $20,000. Total, $700,000.

Col. L. P. di Cesnola.—We are glad to learn that this excellent gentleman and officer has been restored to his command, and has again taken the field. The order dismissing him, which was published a short time since, was made under an entire misapprehension of facts, as all who knew Col. Cesnola were certain it must have been. He was formerly an officer in the Sardinian army, is a high-toned gentleman, a thoroughly educated soldier, and, we are assured, one of the most capable and efficient officers in the service.

The Rising Spirit of the People.

ROCHESTER, Friday, March 13, 1863.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The great Union demonstration in New-York a week since, has had a marked effect on the public mind in this city and vicinity. The Democratic party had carried the city by a large majority last Fall, and but for the timely harmonizing of conflicting interests among the Republicans, would have elected their candidate for Congress. The state of public opinion since then, upon national questions, has been here as elsewhere, unsettled, feverish and expectant. The prominent charge against the Administration was, a violation of the Constitution, both in the objects to which it was alleged it sought to make the war subservient, and the means used in carrying it on, and in suppressing opposition at the North to its principles and measures. The Democratic Press of Western New-York, like its leaders in the East, has continued its denunciations on the same ideas, although the occasion for them has long past. It must be apparent to the most casual observe that the party achieved its triumph by these charges against the Government having ripened into settled convictions in the minds of the people, together with dissatisfaction at the lack of results from the vast means placed at the disposal of the Government. But the tendency of these currents of popular thought and passion has been further and deeper than the mere surface work of sweeping away one or more State Administrations and lifting into power others. It has been undermining the public confidence in, and respect for, our Government. It has led men who were using the sacred names of the Constitution and the Union, as watchwords of partisan strife, in November last, to question the wisdom of that very Constitution and the value of that very Union. It has been, and is yet, no uncommon thing to hear well-informed and really patriotic men, who are not and never would be leaders in a political contest, discuss the probabilities not only of the dissolution of the Union between North and South, but the dismemberment of the whole nation; to look at it as a consummation to be considered and weighed; to censure our forefathers for their adjustment of the political balances between the large and small States, by placing them on an equality in the United States Senate; and to accuse New-England as the source of all our troubles, and wish her out of the Union. One cannot but shudder at the rapidity with which the agitation of questions relating simply to the incidents of administration have hurried the minds of men on to question the very foundations of our Government. But it is the course of revolutionary times in all history. Our age has not yet furnished the exception.

Yet the stern and unyielding patriotism of the Western armies, as displayed in the resolutions and letters of their various divisions, has inspired the popular enthusiasm of their fathers and brothers at home. The magnificent outpouring of patriotic sentiment from the inexhaustible fountain of the warm heart and the incorruptible soul of the West, has overwhelmed the craven and torpid spirit of the East. Most nobly has the latter, reversing the order of nature, reflected the glory of the old oriflamme, rising grandly into the view of friends and foes. The sight could not be withstood in its eloquent and unquestioned teachings, by the true and noble men among the Democracy of New-York. Most nobly have they, in common with their loyal brethren of all parties, responded. The subterfuges of falsehood and disloyalty, through which designing and selfish men all through our State hoped to retain or secure political power, are being swept away. The spirit of the resolutions at your great meeting of Friday last, expanded and enforced by the able and impressive speeches of VAN BUREN, BRADY and DALY, have stayed in a measure the undercurrent of secret disloyalty which was wearing away the unity and confidence of our people. All begin to see more fully and plainly, since the voice of the South has, so far as we have heard without dissent, rejected with contempt the olive branch of the peace men, the imperative necessity of prosecuting the war with a fixed determination to conquer. The Rochester Union, of wide circulation and predominant influence with its party in Western New-York, has published the speeches and proceedings of the meeting, with its approbation and indorsement; and, notwithstanding the Democrats swept the city at our election a fortnight since, and are witnessing similar triumphs in the other cities and villages about us, the vast majority of them will adopt the speech of JOHN VAN BUREN as their platform of principles, and the index of their duty in this crisis. A gentleman who was the unsuccessful candidate of the Democrats in an adjoining Congressional District, last Fall, remarked to me, a day or two since, that that speech contained the true ground for all, both Democrats and Republicans, to meet upon, and that it was unfortunate the same sentiments did not emanate from the same source last Fall. With any ordinary degree of prudence, it does seem that the Administration can secure the support and active confidence of the vast majority of the whole North. One splendid victory at Vicksburgh, Port Hudson, Charleston, or on the Rappahannock, would almost if not quite revive the burning enthusiasm of 1861. So may the cause and the effect be, and conspire to the salvation and perpetuity of the national life.

MONROE.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Loyal League of Union Citizens.—Letter from Gen. Barnard.

The following excellent letter from Gen. BARNARD in reply to the Committee's invitation to attend the meeting held at the Academy of Music on Saturday evening last, will be read with interest.

WASHINGTON, March 11, 1863.

Messrs. George Opdyke, Jonathan Sturges, and others:

GENTLEMEN: I regret that my official avocations prevented my accepting your invitation to attend the "meeting of loyal citizens."

No one has felt more keenly the division of sentiment amongst ourselves, which has vented itself in mutual recriminations, and which, at one time, seemed to me to bid fair to paralyze the arm of our own national strength, at a moment when all that strength was most necessary.

This is no place to introduce topics of political controversy, but when "loyal citizens" appeal to their fellow-citizens to unite in sustaining a righteous war, all must be conscious that there is but one Constitutional rallying point.

All patriotic men should be able to say with Gov. TOD, "I support Mr. LINCOLN, not because he is a Republican, not because he is a Tariff man or an Anti-Slavery man, but because he is President of the United States, and, by virtue of his office, entitled to the support of all loyal men."

When it is the admitted duty of patriotic men thus to feel and thus to act, it would be sad indeed if the Administration represented by Mr. LINCOLN, around which our duty makes us rally, should be, as some would make us believe, unworthy of the confidence we must repose in it—incompetent to the performance of its high duties, and, through that incompetence, the authors of the disasters of the past year, which have been so discouraging to our cause.

Almost equally sad is it if, while such charges are utterly groundless, they, through the want of correct information and through misrepresentation, obtain a credence extensive enough to divide the people and weaken the support due to the Administration, and necessary to a successful prosecution of the war. No more damaging charge has been brought against the Administration, than that its mismanagement of the war brought upon us the military disasters of the past year. On this point I have had some means of judging, and the opinion formed eight months ago, and strengthened by every day's development since, is, that the Administration has been the victim, not the responsible agent, of military mismanagement.

I will venture a word or two as to what appear to me to be the conditions of the war.

When we are told by those high in authority that "there are now no causes of discord that have not always existed, and which were not felt by our fathers in forming the Union;" that "Slavery has been the subject, not the cause, of the war"—it behooves loyal citizens to consider this question well, and to ask whether there is not a "deeper deep" in this matter than "local prejudices, which have grown up in two portions of the Atlantic States, the extremes of our country," &c., &c. It behooves loyal citizens no longer to ignore vital questions and moral questions, and dismiss them with the ready-at-hand expressions of "abolitionism," "fanaticism," &c. In short, it behooves loyal citizens to inquire, and to recognize that something depends on the result of this inquiry: "Is Slavery, in fact, a good, or is it an evil?"

If a good, then, indeed, we are all wrong; there are no causes of discord other than our fathers knew, and this war has grown out of "local prejudices."

If the answer is that it is an evil, (as admitted even by the Southern Statesmen of the day of our fathers to be, "socially, politically and morally,") even though qualified as a "necessary" one, then it must be admitted that it is not a quiescent and stationary evil, but an aggressive and self-disseminating one; an evil which, since the days of our fathers, has spread over the land with frightful rapidity, until, at this day, four millions of slaves stand in the place of the few hundred thousands they had to deal with, and who they hoped would, "in the order of Providence, be evanescent and pass away;" that the very condition of that "security," which is so haughtily demanded as its constitutional right, was the right of indefinite expansion, drawing with it as a sequence, the reopening of the African slave-trade. The right, denied by "our fathers," (who prohibited Slavery in the Northwestern territory,) of extending Slavery into all the territories, of having State for State in the Union, Senator for Senator in the United States Senate, was the condition without which this innocent evil would not be "protected." In other words, the "security" it claims demands that this nation and this continent be converted into one vast slave empire, and the "institution" which the growing sense to human rights of modern civilization has condemned and abolished in every European dependency, except those of Spain, sets up anew its throne here, in the vaunted land of "liberty," and proclaims the "corner-stone" of that liberty to be "Slavery."

Such are the issues. It is not a contest of which the results are to be merely whether there shall be a little more Slavery or a little less; it is not a contest to decide whether "Free and Slave States can exist together in the Union." It is a contest which an evil principle inevitably wages against all that restrains it, just so soon as it feels itself strong enough to array itself in open hostility—a contest between the principle of Slavery and the principle of Free Labor.

"Such," says Mr. SPRATT, one of the accepted exponents of the Confederate cause, "are the two forms of society which had come to contest within the structure of the recent Union. And the contest for existence was inevitable. Neither could concur in the requisitions of the other; neither could expand within the forms of a single Government, without encroachment on the other. * * * * The Slave-trade suppressed, Democratic society has triumphed."

Hon. HENRY MAY, a gentleman who may be accepted as the exponent of deliberate Southern views, rather than as a "leader of the insurrection," whose violence misrepresents the truth, says:

"The people of the South believe, and I believe, that there is an established, a fixed and unalterable antagonism between the sections where Slavery is and is not allowed, and that no future political union, as long as Slavery exists, can ever be maintained between them on any basis whatever."

Such, I repeat, are the issues. Let those who yet believe in a "Union as it was," with fresh guarantees for Slavery, and who fear, lest in doing some harm to the institution, we bar the door to this reunion with Slavery "as it was," forget the duties they owe to their country and mankind in this most delusive of hopes. For myself, I will but repeat what I have said elsewhere:

There can be no reunion with Slavery "as it was:" even though its extinction be not a sine quâ non, it must be fettered and bound, and, as a political power, forever annihilated. When this is felt to be, as it is, the condition of honorable national existence—of any peace which shall be a peace, indeed, and not anarchy and chronic war—then we may expect that union of all parties and that earnestness for the cause of truth and humanity, which, through God's blessing, shall enable us to trample under foot the real enemy to our peace. Then the proclamation, instead of being denounced as converting the war into one of abolition, will be recognized to be what it is—a just and proper military measure, and the one thing which is alone calculated to avert the hostility of Europe, and to enchain to our cause, perforce of public opinion, the influence of its Governments.

I am, gentlemen, with great respect,

Your most obedient servant,

J. G. BARNARD, Brigadier-General,

And late Chief-Engineer of the Army of the Potomac.

The Counterfeits on the Central Bank of Worcester, Mass.

In the TIMES, of yesterday, we published the fact that counterfeit $500 bills were in circulation, and that some of them had been passed successfully upon the brokers in Wall-street. Yesterday morning it became evident that the fraud had been practiced to a greater extent than was at first supposed. Five persons—the most of them Wall-street brokers or their clerks—appeared before Justice DOWLING, at the Tombs, and made oath that a man named GEORGE PARK had been guilty of passing upon each of them one of the spurious notes. One of them was passed upon the firm of WHITE, MORRISON & Co., No. 29 Wall-street; one upon GWYNNE & DAY, No. 21 Wall-street, and one upon EDWARD LIVERMORE, No. 40 Wall-street. PARK attempted to pass one at No. 33 Wall, and also one at the banking office of ISHI CRAVEN, No. 17 Wall-street. At the latter place it appears that the note was suspected, and the broker in charge of the office sent it out for examination. It was soon returned with the information that it was a counterfeit. PARK was therefore detained a few minutes until an officer came and took him into custody. Upon his preliminary examination yesterday afternoon, PARK stated that he had received these bills in the ordinary course of business, and had no idea that they were bad; he further stated that he was a merchant of 20 years' standing, and would not for any amount of money, knowingly, endanger his reputation. He was then committed for a further examination. The Police authorities have in the meantime received dispatches from Boston, Philadelphia, Washington and other places, to the effect that bold attempts have just been made to put into circulation these $500 counterfeit notes. They are so well executed that no person, unless an adept in the business, can distinguish them from the genuine notes of the Bank.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

FATAL STABBING AFFRAY IN A GROGGERY—ARREST OF THE PERPETRATOR.—Thursday night, about 10 o'clock, a disturbance occurred in the liquor-shop of GARRETT LAUNDRESS, No. 25 Washington-street, between the keeper of the place and JOHN KANE, a seaman, during which LAUNDRESS, as is charged, drew a sharp-pointed sheath-knife and stabbed KANE in the abdomen, inflicting a mortal wound. Dr. CHRISTOPHER WELTJE was immediately called to attend the injured man, but medical aid was of no avail, as death ensued soon afterward. LAUNDRESS was promptly arrested by Officer COYLE, of the Twenty-seventh Precinct, and locked up to await the result of the Coroner's inquisition. The knife with which the fatal wound was inflicted, was subsequently found in the rear yard of prisoner's premises, and identified as belonging to LAUNDRESS. Coroner WILDEY was notified, and will hold an inquest upon the body at 10 o'clock this morning, at the Twenty-seventh Precinct Station-house in Cedar-street. Drs. BOUTON and WELTJE made a post-mortem examination yesterday afternoon. They found one stab of a serious nature in the left arm, and another in the right side. This is the one which, doubtless, produced his death. The knife had entered between the eighth and ninth ribs, and then passed through into the right lobe of the liver, causing a frightful wound. It has been ascertained that the deceased had been in this country but a short time, he having arrived a few weeks ago from Ireland. He immediately put up at the boarding-house kept by LAUNDRESS. A few days ago the latter turned him away from his premises, on account of some quarrel between them. On Thursday evening deceased returned, and LAUNDRESS was obliged to call in a policeman to eject him from the house. Later in the evening he again returned when the quarrel ensued which resulted in KANE's death.

NEW-YORK THERAPEUTIC MEDICAL COLLEGE.—The concluding exercises of the Winter term of the New-York Hygienic Therapeutic Medical College took place in the Hygienic Hall on Tuesday evening, March 17. Addresses were made by Professors Trall, Lines, Sizer and Allen, and selected theses read by Pusey Heald, of Wilmington, Del.; Mrs. Lydia A. Strobridge, of Cortlandville, N. Y., and Jerome Kidder, of New-York. The following is the list of graduates, with their respective residences and theses: Jerome Kidder, New-York, "Mind and Matter;" Pusey Heald, Wilmington, Del., "The Hygienic Physician;" Mrs. Lydia A. Strobridge Cortlandville, N. Y., "Consumption;" Dwight Silliman, Salisbury Centre, N. Y., "Nature and Nature's Help;" J. A. Brents, Albany, Ky., "Guns of the Medical Profession;" Miss Mary Hale, Saludah, Ind., "Small Pox;" James G. Webster, Anderson, Indiana, "Morbid Disease;" Mrs. Elizabeth W. Webster, Anderson, Indiana, "Parturition;" David Wark, Montreal, C. E., "Respiration;" Miss Lizzie Pendleton, Chicago, Ill., "Pneumonia;" Robert Wilson, Minersville, Penn., "Dyspepsia;" Mrs. Annie Hall, New-York, "Scarlet Fever;" Joseph B. Mayo, Occuput, N. Holbrook, Mantua, Ohio, "Theory of Disease." In the afternoon, a festival of good and wholesome things was provided by Dr. MILLER, proprietor of the Hygienic Institute, at which sentiments were read and responded to by the Professors and students and inmates of the establishment.

AN UNPATRIOTIC CONDUCTOR.—A short time ago Alderman OTTIWELL observed the conductor of car No. 38 of the Fourth-avenue Railroad, refuse to take up two wounded soldiers, who were on their way home to Connecticut, having furloughs and passes, but no money. The men were then going up to the New-Haven Railroad depot, and had walked part of the way, but being quite wearied out with trudging through the snow that had shortly before fallen and made foot traveling difficult, they sought to ride the remainder of the distance. The conductor rudely repulsed them; and to the remonstrances of the Alderman, he replied very gruffly that he knew his duty and was not to be interfered with. The soldiers were not in the least intoxicated, were cleanly dressed and behaved properly, while their countenances evidenced an emaciation and weariness that ought to have enlisted sympathy in their behalf from any person. The incident just noted, however, led to their receiving a good meal and a small donation of money before they proceeded any further on their journey. It would be interesting to know whether the action of the conductor is authorized by the instructions of the Company employing him.

BROOKLYN NEWS.

FIRE.—About 1 o'clock, yesterday morning, a fire broke out in the upper part of a three-story brick house, No. 27 Myrtle-avenue, which was occupied as a store, and by two families. The flames spread so rapidly that the occupants had barely time to escape. Very little of the furniture was saved. The first floor was occupied as a bookstore by Mr. G. R. GILLESPIE, the second floor by Mr. JOHNSON, and the third, by Mr. L. W. BLISS. Combined loss, about $1,000—partially insured. The premises are owned by Rev. E. M. JOHNSON. Loss about $1,000.

SEVENTEENTH WARD SOLDIERS' AID SOCIETY.—The Greenpoint Soldiers' Aid Society, since their organization, have received from subscriptions and other sources the sum of $7,510 06. Paid out for relief, $3,929 20; for bounties, $2,840; printing and room-hire, $28 25. Total, $6,797 45. Balance in treasury, $712 61. The whole number of families to whom relief has been extended has been 86, including 125 children; and the amount paid per week has averaged over $162. Over $1,000 was added to the fund by subscription on Thursday.

NEW-JERSEY.

FIRE ON BOARD A SCHOONER.—Yesterday forenoon, about 11 o'clock, a fire occurred on board the schooner Bulrush, of Newport, loaded with hay, and lying at anchor in the basin above the Erie Railway depot. The police boat, together with some tugs, went alongside, and got streams upon the fire, which at that time enveloped the entire vessel. The schooner got loose from her anchorage, and was carried down stream by the tide, opposite the Cunard dock, where she came in contact with some portion of the schooner burned and sunk there some weeks since, and heeled over. The amount of damage could not be ascertained.

OTHER FIRES.—At 1½ o'clock yesterday morning, a fire occurred in a one-story frame building formerly used as a lager-bier saloon, on Palisade-avenue, Bergen Hill, which was entirely destroyed. Loss about $500. The building is supposed to have been set on fire, as it was unoccupied at the time.... At 6 o'clock, yesterday morning, an old shanty in Essex-street, Jersey City, of but little value, was also burned down.

LAW REPORTS.

SUPERIOR COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

Before Justice Robertson.

Sally Ann Howell vs. The Knickerbocker Life Insurance Company.—In the year 1853, as appeared in this case, George R. Howell, of this City, as agent for his wife, insured his life for her benefit and the benefit of his children, in the Knickerbocker Life Insurance Company, of this City, in the sum of $5,000. The premiums were paid regularly and punctually, as claimed, from that time until 1861. On the morning of the 15th of July, 1862—that being the day upon which the premium became payable—Howell left his residence in perfect health, and proceeded to his place of business, where he made memoranda of several things to be done on that day, and among them was the payment of the premium on this policy of insurance. But before noon of that day he was suddenly struck with paralysis, and lingered in a state of stupor, incapable of speech or action, until the next day, when he died.

The fact of the non-payment of the premium was not discovered until a day or two after his death, when the same was tendered to the Company. The Company, however, declined receiving the premium, and claimed that the policy was forfeited.

This action was thereupon brought, and the complaint set out a number of facts to relieve the plaintiff from the consequences of omitting to pay the premium on the day fixed.

Motion was made to strike out such allegations as irrelevant.

After recapitulating the facts, the Court says:

ROBERTSON, J.—It is conceded that if the parts proposed to be stricken from the complaint be so stricken out, no course of action on the policy will be set out.

The motion is made under the 160th section of the code, to strike out irrelevant matters. Under this, a motion could not prevail to strike out a whole complaint. The irrelevancy must therefore be to the cause of action as the plaintiff claims it to exist, and not as the defendant supposes it to be constituted. Possibly all the matters set up in the complaint may not furnish a legal excuse for not paying the premium on the day it was fixed to be paid; if they do not, the plaintiff has no cause of action. But whether they do or not should be tested by demurrer, otherwise such a motion might be made always to take the place of demurrer by taking any allegation, and of a complaint upon the ground that it did not aid in constituting an available legal course of action.

But the allegations proposed to be stricken out are not so palpably immaterial in making out a good cause of action, as to be disposed of summarily. It is not so clear that the policy is not an insurance for the life of the party mentioned in it, defeasible on the failure of the assured to pay the premiums on the day fixed. It is a sealed instrument, the payment of the annual premiums may not be intended to make a new agreement, but only to sustain the fixed one, otherwise the provision that the parties could make a new agreement is superfluous, since they necessarily have that right. If a new contract is to be made on the payment of each premium, many of the representations contained in the application for insurance might be untrue at the time of such payments, and thus avoid the new contract. Premiums or policies of life insurance are concluded according to the age of the subject insured. If the defendants had a right to refuse a policy at the end of each year on the same terms, the assured would have paid his premium in vain. (See Peacock vs. The New-York Life Ins. Co., 3 Bosw. Sup. Ct. Rep., 293.)

It is also specified in the policy, that all premiums shall be forfeited in case there shall be found any misrepresentations or concealment in the representations; this tends to show that the representations were to apply to the continuance of the policy by all future payments of premiums. All such considerations have a tendency to show the payment of premiums annually to be a condition subsequent, and capable of having these rigorous terms relaxed.

The policy also provides that a payment on the 15th of July in each year of the premium keeps the policy alive. The assured have consequently the whole day to pay it in, although the time fixed in the body of the policy expires at noon. If the subject of insurance died in the afternoon, a tender of the premium before midnight might make the Company responsible; this rather gives color to the construction that precise time was not of the essence of the contract.

Any understanding of the Company with the plaintiff's husband, or usage on their part, might perhaps sustain a deviation by her from the rigorous terms of the contract, if the payment of premiums were only conditions subsequent.

It is possible, also, the act of God, in striking down the plaintiff's husband, agent and sole reliance in paying the premium, may excuse the want of exact performance of the contract. (See Wolf vs. Howes, 20 N. Y. Rep., and cases cited by Allen, Justice, and Baldwin vs. New-York Life Insurance and Trust Company, 3 Bosw., 530.)

There is enough in the case to justify me in not pronouncing the complaint palpably bad, and compelling the defendants to demur.

The motion must be denied, with $10 costs to abide the event.

Searches for Judgments Docketed in the County Clerk's Office—Liability for Mistakes.

SUPREME COURT—CIRCUIT.

Before Justice Potter.

Kimball vs. Richard B. Connolly.—The plaintiff sued as Executor of Ellen LeRoy to make the defendant liable as County Clerk for an alleged error in a search made of the title of a lot on Twelfth-street.

Mrs. Le Roy desired to obtain a loan upon her property, and applied to the Jefferson Fire Insurance Company for the loan. The attorney of the Company caused the defendant, as County Clerk, to search for judgments obtained against Moses Le Roy, a former owner of the property. It was charged that the defendant omitted to make return upon the search of a judgment docketed in his office against said Le Roy, upon which the property was afterward sold under execution.

Mrs. Leroy, as claimed, had no knowledge of the sale until after the time for redemption had passed, and the mortgagee was in possession.

The loan was made to Mrs. Leroy, but by the sale of the property the mortgage was cut off. The Company instituted proceedings to set aside the judgment, but finally abandoned them, and subsequently paid the mortgagee $400 for a release of his interest.

The plaintiff sought to recover that sum as damages arising directly from the defendant's failure to return the judgment upon the search. Evidence was introduced to show that had it been returned it would have been paid out of the loan obtained from the Insurance Company.

The Jury were directed to find for the plaintiff for the sum of $400.

E. H. Kimball and R. H. Underhill for plaintiff; Glover & Darling for defendant.

COMMON PLEAS—TRIAL TERM.

Before Judge Brady.

Alfred Flock vs. De Forest Manice.—The plaintiff demands that he was the tenant of the defendant at No. 599 Sixth-avenue, (running through to Broadway,) occupying and using such premises as a butcher; that while he so occupied, the defendant commenced blasting rocks on the adjoining premises, and in such a manner as to endanger, as alleged, the occupants of the premises No. 599, and rendered the store unsafe for even consumers to visit. In this way the plaintiff claimed that he had been much injured in his business, and for which he demanded $2,500 damages.

The defendant admitted by his answer that they blasted rocks on the adjoining premises, but alleged that it was distinctly understood that they were to do so, when the plaintiff hired the premises. The defendant denied all knowledge or information concerning the allegations of danger to the occupants of the premises hired by plaintiff.

The jury disagreed and were discharged.

Man and Parsons for plaintiff; Ashley and Manice for defendant.

Can a Wife Charge Her Separate Estate for the Sole Use and Benefit of Her Husband—If so, in What Manner?

SUPREME COURT—GENERAL TERM.

Before Justices Sutherland, Ingraham and Clerke.

Burnett vs. Lichtenstein.—This was an action upon a note made by the defendant, as alleged, upon the request of her husband for his benefit and his surety.

The note was in these words: "Thirty days after date, I promise to pay to the order of Mr. Lichtenstein (defendant's husband) one hundred and fifty-two dollars and seventeen cents, at No. 359 Canal-street. Value received for the benefit of my separate real and personal estate, and the said sum is hereby declared to be a charge thereupon and payable therefrom." The complaint alleged that the defendant had a separate real and personal estate, and the allegation was not denied in the answer.

The Court at Special Term found that the note was given by the defendant as surety for her husband and for his sole benefit, and that her separate estate was not at all benefited thereby; and upon such findings judgment was given for the defendant, the Court holding that the wife could not bind her separate estate unless the property was specifically described in the contract.

The case was appealed and the Court now hold, CLERKE J., that it is not necessary that the property intended to be charged should be specifically described, unless it was the intention to charge only a portion of it. By the terms of this contract the whole separate estate was charged, and the wife had the right so to charge it as security for her husband, and her intention to do so was distinctly declared in the contract. The only question was whether the contract was void, the real consideration, by mistake, not being stated,—held, that it was not, and that the judgment should be reversed. New trial ordered.

Justice INGRAHAM dissented, holding that a wife could loan her note to her husband for his benefit, without any consideration to herself, to be used by him as security for his debts, even although she makes it a charge upon her separate property. Nor can she charge her separate estate for any such indebtedness, by the mere words included in the note, that the indebtedness is declared to be such a charge. A wife may bind her separate property so as to be such security; but it must be as to real estate in a form that will reach real estate. She may join with her husband in a mortgage of her real estate for money advanced to him, or she may make any specific piece of property liable to such a charge by executing an instrument which at the time imposes such a liability. But the general declaration, as contained in this note, is not sufficient to impose on all her estate, real and personal, a liability for a contract which at law is void and cannot be enforced, and which, therefore, presents to equity no good reason why a Court of Equity should interpose its power to enforce a contract which is void at law. The effect of such an interference would be to place a married woman in a worse condition than if she were sole—to put her more completely in the power of her husband than she would be under any other relation, and to deprive her of all the safeguards which the law has thrown around her to preserve to her own use, from the debts and liabilities of her husband, the property which is hers, and not her husband's.

Justice INGRAHAM accordingly came to the conclusion that the judgment below should not be interfered with.

The Corporation and its Streets—Liability for Non-Repair.

SUPERIOR COURT—TRIAL TERM.

Before Justice Moncrief.

David B. Montague vs. Theodore C. P. Vidal and Others, and the Mayor, &c.—The plaintiff alleged that on the 24th day of December, 1861, the defendant, Vidal, was the owner of the premises No. 184 Duane-street, in this City, and the defendants Rose and Yole were his tenants; and that then, and for a long time prior thereto, there was in the pavement in front of such premises a vault-hole without any covering, which rendered the street unsafe to be passed.

The complaint set forth that while passing the street on that day the plaintiff fell into the vault, and greatly injured one of his legs. For the damage thus sustained he sought to make the City jointly liable with the other defendants, pleading the ordinances of the City, making it the duty of the Corporation to keep its streets and walks in good and safe repair.

The alleged tenants made no answer. The Corporation denied each and every allegation of the complaint. The defendant Vidal answered that another suit was pending in this Court for the same course of action, and denying all the allegations of the complaint.

A motion to dismiss the complaint was denied, and the case resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff for $200.

Peter Y. Cutler for plaintiff; E. Ketchum for defendant Vidal, Greene C. Bronson for Corporation.

Notes of Prize Decisions.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.

Before Judge Betts.

The United States vs. The Schooner Reindeer and her Cargo—This vessel was captured in the Gulf of Mexico on Sept. 17, 1862, by the bark William G. Anderson. On her passage to this port in charge of a prize crew, she put into Key West, where she was pronounced unseaworthy, and appropriated to the use of the United States. Her cargo was sent here by another vessel. Process of attachment in this suit was returned duly served, and no one appeared to contest the case. By consent of the libelants, a part of the cargo, 73,533 pounds of cotton, was, by decree of Feb. 27, 1863, remitted to James Millinger, or his agents or attorneys.

The testimony of the master of the vessel showed that she and her cargo were owned by residents of the Confederate States, that she sailed under a clearance and pass from Confederate authorities, and under that flag, and was captured the day after she sailed from Galveston, bound to Havana. No papers were found on board of her.

Held by the Court—That there is no ground for question that the vessel and cargo were enemy property, and sailed from Galveston with intent to violate the blockade then imposed on that port.

Vessel and cargo condemned.

The United States vs. The Schooner Hetiwan and Cargo.—This vessel was captured off Charleston Harbor, on Jan. 21, 1863. The vessel was on survey found unseaworthy, and left at Port Royal for the use of the Government, and her cargo brought to this port. Process was issued, and returned duly served, and on its return no one appeared.

The master on his examination testified that the vessel and cargo were owned by persons residing in the Confederate States, and were captured coming out of Charleston in violation of the blockade; that the voyage was to Nassau under the Confederate flag, and register and a military pass from those authorities.

Vessel and cargo condemned as enemy property, and for violation of the blockade.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT—MARCH 17.

Before Judge Shipman.

The United States vs. Michael Moore.—In this case, which was adjourned till to-day in consequence of the copy of the panel not having been served, the prisoner's counsel declined to waive the service of it, as there were but 17 jurors present. The case was accordingly postponed till Wednesday next.

SUPREME COURT—CIRCUIT.

Before Justice Leonard.

Silas H. Buttrick vs. William Patten and others.—This was an action to recover the value of certain jewelry alleged to have been wrongfully taken from the plaintiff by the defendants at Cleveland, Ohio, in May, 1861, claimed to be worth $2,500.

The defendants put in a general denial. Upon being submitted to the jury a verdict was given to the plaintiff for $358 50.

Torrance and Spaulding for plaintiff; Owen, Gray and Owen for defendants.

SURROGATE'S COURT.

Before Surrogate Tucker.

Charitable Bequests.—The will of Daniel Leo, now admitted to Probate, leaves $250 to the Roman Catholic Orphan Asylum, and $250 to the Sisters of the Good Shepherd. A considerable residuary estate is left to the widow, after her death to go in equal shares to the Roman Catholic Sisters of Mercy, Sisters of Charity, and Sisters of the Good Shepherd.

Wills Admitted.—The wills of the following-named persons were now admitted to Probate: Thos. K. Cullen, John Penfold, Ann Van Worden, Matthias Glunk, Cornelia Chandler, Robert Roberts and John Kurst.

Bills of the Broadway Association—Liability of the Corporation Therefor.

COMMON PLEAS—TRIAL TERM.

Before Judge Hilton.

E. V. Haughwout vs. The Mayor, &c.—This was an action by the plaintiff as President of the "Broadway Association," which contracted with Robert A. Smith, in July, 1857, to sweep Broadway four times each week for the consideration of $180 per week. Smith continued to sweep Broadway until July, 1859, when the sum of $7,720 was due, and which is still unpaid.

It is claimed that the Corporation subsequently assumed responsibility, and agreed to pay this amount by a resolution directing the Comptroller to pay it to the order of the plaintiff as President, and C. L. Tiffany as Treasurer of the Association. The Comptroller refused his warrant. This action was then commenced, and now came on for trial.

Motion was made to dismiss the complaint, mainly on the grounds that the plaintiff never performed work for the Corporation, and that the sum claimed belongs to Smith, even if collected; and the further ground that the action of the Common Council was in violation of the Charter, and created no liability—none having existed prior to such action.

Decision reserved.

FRIDAY, March 20—P. M.

The price of Gold Coin is 1 ℘ cent lower than yesterday. The sales up to 3 o'clock this afternoon were generally made at 154⅛@155 ℘ cent. The rate of Exchange on London is also less firm than on Thursday, and the demand reported dull for Saturday's mail at 170½@171 ℘ cent. There was less business done for this opportunity to-day than yesterday. The shipments of this week are very light compared with the movement of last week. The market for Money is easy at 5 @ 6 ℘ cent to the Stock Brokers. The supply offering is much in advance of the immediate disposition to speculate on the Stock Exchange. The consequence is that large sums are being daily placed in Government Stocks and Treasury paper at the going rates. The subscriptions at par to the United States Loan of 1882 with the Sub-Agents, Messrs. FISK & HATCH, No. 38 Wall-street, to-day amount to about a quarter of a million of dollars. The precise sum is $232,000. The subscriptions in all the great markets this week average over $300,000 per day. The Treasury Certificates of Indebtedness are active at 99¾@⅞ for the old issue, (interest payable in Gold,) and 97¾@⅞ for the new, (interest payable in Currency.) Large sales of the 7.30 ℘ cents were made to-day at 106⅞@107 ℘ cent.

The current resources of the Treasury are equal to about five millions of dollars, independent of Certificates of Indebtedness issued on Quartermasters' requisitions, to wit:

From Internal Taxes (on the increase)	$1,800,000
From Customs, in Gold	1,200,000
Conversion of U. S. Notes into 1882 Loan	2,000,000
Together	$5,000,000

The receipts from Internal Taxes promise soon to reach $2,250,000 ℘ week, and the conversion of U. S. Notes of Circulation into the 6 ℘ cents of 1882, $3,000,000 ℘ week.

In addition to the foregoing receipts into the Treasury, the temporary deposits in currency on 5 ℘ cent. interest (the interest being payable in currency) are quite large. At the New-York office to-day they amount to $1,067,000. But this privilege is limited to $100,000,000 altogether; and the amount not yet filled up is probably less than one-fourth this sum. The following official notice appears from the United States Assistant Treasurer:

NEW-YORK, March 20, 1863.

Under authority from the Secretary of the Treasury, I hereby give notice that, hereafter, interest at the rate of five (5) per cent. will be allowed on deposits, under the act of Congress, approved Feb. 25, 1862, for not less than thirty (30) days, subject to be withdrawn after ten (10) days notice, given at any time after the expiration of the thirty (30) days.

Deposits heretofore made at four (4) per cent. may be withdrawn at any time, without notice, for the purpose of being re-deposited at five (5) per cent.

JOHN J. CISCO, Assistant Treasurer U. S.

The Share list at the Stock Exchange, to-day, was moderately active. The prices much the same as yesterday on the Railways. The sellers of Pacific Mail accepted lower bids by 2½@3 ℘ cent. The Federal Securities, as above noted, were in active request. The City Bank shares and Railway mortgages were partially higher than yesterday.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

We have advices from Port Royal to the 16th inst., by an arrival at this port. Intelligence had been received from the Black Brigade, marching into Florida; that they had captured several important points on the way, prisoners, and large quantities of munitions and supplies, and that they were still driving the enemy before them. There is nothing new regarding the movement of Gen. Hunter's forces. The soldiers were holding indignation meetings to denounce the Copperheads in the North.

Advices from Fortress Monroe embody extracts from the Richmond papers of the 18th inst. The municipal election in Fredericksburgh took place on that day, and resulted in the reelection of Mr. Slaughter. The Inquirer says that the conscript officers have been quite busy lately among the "nice young men" of Richmond. Notice is made of the fact that our cavalry crossed the Rappahannock River on the 19th, and the statement is made that there was some fighting, but the result is not given. The gunboat Isaac P. Smith, captured by the rebels in Stono River, has been repaired, and is now Ingraham's flagship.

Southern news, received by way of Fredericksburgh, indicates that the rebels are seriously contemplating the contingency of having to fall back from the Rappahannock to some place nearer Richmond.

Additional advices from Vicksburgh, received in Cincinnati, state that the health of Gen. Grant's army is improving, and that the troops are enthusiastic over the prospects of a speedy encounter with the rebels. It was believed that the Lake Providence Canal would prove successful. A large movement of transports and gunboats had taken place at the Yazoo Pass—formidable enough, no doubt, to insure the success of the enterprise in that direction.

The expedition under Col. Corwin has recently ascended the Tennessee River as far as Tuscumbia, in Northern Alabama, on the Memphis and Charleston Railroad. According to rebel accounts, the expedition reached that place on the 22d ult., and the gunboats destroyed two ferryboats there, and another at Florence, a few miles distant. After dark the land force dashed into Tuscumbia, and dispersed a party of rebel cavalry, who fled to the mountains. Col. Corwin then occupied the town, and issued a proclamation levying assessments on wealthy rebels. He is said to have proceeded into the interior on the 25th.

It is reported from West Virginia that three rebel regiments arrived at Lewisburgh on the 4th. It was thought in military circles that the rebels intended to make demonstrations in West Virginia about the time of the election on the New State question. It is stated that Jenkins is at Coal Knob, in Greenbrier County, about sixty-five miles from Bulltown, and prisoners captured belonging to his command say that he intends to make another raid through West Virginia as soon as the roads get in a passable condition.

Two millions of legal tender notes have been within the last six days converted into the 5.10 Government Loan. The subscriptions yesterday amounted to $700,000.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

In the Senate yesterday, a majority report was made from the Finance Committee in favor of settling the claim of the State against Richmond County for Quarantine damages, for $47,000 instead of $107,000. A majority report was also made from the Committee on the Salt question, against increasing the duty. A minority report was made in favor of increasing the duty to two cents per bushel. A motion to instruct the Committee to report a bill on the basis of the minority report was lost by a tie vote. A motion to have a Grinding Committee was adopted. The bill for the enforcement of water rent liens in Brooklyn was passed.

In the Assembly, a number of bills were reported favorably, and a number for the consideration of the House—none of them of special importance. Among the bills introduced was one incorporating the Nassau Railroad Company of Brooklyn. The resolutions regarding arbitrary arrests came up as the special order. A motion to refer them to the Committee on Federal Relations was lost—56 to 55—and then the resolutions were voted down by the same vote.

GENERAL NEWS.

The steamship Norwegian arrived at Portland yesterday, bringing advices from Europe five days later, including a summary of news brought from Liverpool by the Edinburgh, now due at this port. The Norwegian left Liverpool on the 5th, and Londonderry on the 6th inst. The political news by this arrival is comparatively unimportant. There were no new developments regarding the American question. It was reported in Paris that Gen. Forey, commanding the French expedition in Mexico, had sent urgent demands to his Government for more reinforcements, which could not be sent to him. The Polish question appears to be unchanged. The action of the Governments had not been fully determined, though it was rumored that the French Cabinet had taken action in favor of the Poles. The Liverpool Cotton market was dull, and prices were nominal. Breadstuffs were generally steady, and Provisions quiet. Consols were quoted at 92⅞ for money.

The price of Gold Coin was 1@1½ ₩ cent. lower yesterday than on Thursday, closing 154⅜ ₩ cent. The Federal Securities were all firm. The new subscriptions to the 6 ₩ cent. Loan of 1882, amounted to $232,000, and the deposits with the Sub-Treasury on 5 ₩ cent. interest, were $1,067,000. The Railway shares were steady.

Business in Breadstuffs and Provisions was less active yesterday, though buyers had any existing advantage. A moderate demand prevailed for Hay, Hops and Tallow. Whisky and Raisins were more freely purchased. Groceries were heavy and drooping, as were also Oils, Metals, Seeds, Spices, Fish, Foreign Liquors and Naval Stores. No important movements were reported in Cotton, which was quoted nominally lower. All kinds of Dry Goods were in limited request and prices were tending downward. The freight market was brisker and firmer.

Federal Authority and State Rights.

The letter which we published yesterday, addressed to Dr. Quackenbush, the Surgeon-General of the State of New-York, by the members of the United States Sanitary Commission, touching the bill now before the Legislature for providing additional relief for the sick and wounded soldiers of this State, suggests one or two considerations regarding separate State action in military matters generally, which just now, more than ever, deserve attention.

We have thoroughly tested the system of carrying on war by means of small armies raised in and officered and kept up by each State in its own way, without any reference to the general wants or general good of the service at large, and it has proved a failure. It was an admirable plan of raising volunteers in large numbers, but it was probably the worst plan the wit of man ever devised for keeping a large army in the field in full force and efficiency. Jefferson Davis tried it at the outset of the war; but three months of hostilities in 1862 satisfied him and his associates that it was impossible to concentrate, and therefore to economize, the force of a nation in a desperate and protracted struggle, without an army thoroughly homogeneous, and thoroughly and exclusively controlled and organized by one central authority. The Fort Donelson catastrophe was not well over, when State lines disappeared from the Confederate military organization, and the conscription swept every man, without reference either to the place of his enlistment or his wishes, into that regiment and that arm of the service in which the military authorities judged that he would be of most use. The result was, as we must all confess, a prodigious increase in the tenacity, mobility and discipline of the Southern troops. Their resistance before that period was extremely feeble and desultory; their resistance since that period has been unexampled, considering the difficulties under which they labor, for its skill, obstinacy and hardihood.

We have hitherto recoiled from a similar reorganization and consolidation of our forces, partly owing to that deplorable habit of underrating our enemy, which has, more than anything else, wrought whatever discouragements have prevailed at the North, and partly to a reliance on mere numbers, without reference to the manner in which these numbers are marshaled and brought into play. We have been in the habit of adding up the number of men actually furnished by each State, and the number of men that each State could furnish at a pinch, comparing the sum total with the capacity of rebeldom in the same direction, and thus complacently folding our arms, and pronouncing the ultimate result certain.

No doubt the result is certain, but it makes all the difference in life whether it is to be purchased at the cost of 100,000 or 500,000 men. So that the means by which we triumph is really of fully as much importance as the triumph itself. Now, the want of organization in military matters may be safely said to double the proverbial waste and destructiveness of war; it renders numbers a source of weakness instead of a source of strength, and converts size into mere blubber. No other nation in the world, not even Russia, with the control which she posesses over the services of her population, could carry on such a struggle as that in which we are engaged, in the way in which we have been carrying it on, without exhaustion at the end of the second campaign. We have willfully discarded several things which are essential, even in armies of long standing, and doubly essential in ours, which had no training and no great military traditions. We have raised regiments and officered them in such a way, that the experience of those who had already served was of no sort of use, and exercised no sort of influence over those who had newly joined, and we have by the same means thrown every possible obstacle in the way of the formation of that esprit du corps, or corps pride, which is the very basis of military success. We have suffered the most valuable men in the service, its veterans, to be constantly reminded of their losses and reverses by the daily spectacle of the thinned and dwindling ranks of their own regiments. And though last not least, by the general confused way in which the State and National Governments have been mixed up in the raising and organization of the army, we have confused the soldier's notions of duty, and allegiance and subordination, and rendered it impossible for him to know where and to whom he had to look for honor and promotion.

The Conscription act bids fair at last to put an end to this horrible medley. We shall now have one army, with one hand, and one law and one soul. We shall have the satisfaction of knowing that when a man goes to the field he goes to serve the United States, and not to swell the State muster-rolls for the benefit of Capt. A. or Col. B. But we must have this unity and uniformity in all that relates to the army, as well as in the army itself. For this reason we earnestly call the attention of the Legislature and the public to the arguments of the Sanitary Commissioners. Our curse, so far, has been the multiplicity of our organizations of all kinds, and the inefficiency of them all. What we want is less machinery, and greater perfection in that which we keep. An army of volunteers, without a common head, without a common rule of action, without a common code of discipline, without common objects, without defined relations, without a well-marked responsibility, is just as great a curse in the hospitals as it would be in the field. They involve waste of money, of energy, and of charity. Unhappily, in such a crisis as this, all these things mean waste of life. The duty of every man now is to see that our strength in every department is concentrated, our organizations not multiplied but perfected, and that the idea of the National unity is kept constantly before the soldier's mind—as prominently under the enemy's fire as under the hand of the Sister of Mercy.

Copperheads and the Border States.

It will be remembered that Vallandigham, recently advertised to deliver an address in Baltimore, received a notification that it could not safely be done, and thereupon, like a prudent man, reserved his sedition for New-York. He thereby escaped rough handling. An Indiana Copperhead—Cravens, Congressman elect—has not been so fortunate. It seems that under the wing of "an old man of Kentucky named Wickliffe," he ventured into the State Convention at Louisville, took the floor, and commenced vehement abuse of the Administration, with praise of the peace movements. The drift of his discourse was no sooner discovered, than indignant cries arose from all parts of the hall—as "Put him out!" "Down with the traitor!" "Shame on the Copperheads!" and amid groans and jeers, he was incontinently tumbled out of doors. In the course of a week or two Mr. Cravens, imitating Vallandigham, will probably appear at the Copperhead headquarters in this City, and be received with clappings of hands and shouts of applause.

Now, we ask again, is it not a little extraordinary that the Copperheads are most trodden upon in the very part of the country which they hold particularly dear? They get no mercy either in Maryland, or in Missouri, or in Kentucky—although they are all the while hissing against summary arrests, while nine-tenths of the arrests of that sort, thus far, have been made in those three States—and against the Anti-Slavery action of the Administration, while those States are the only loyal States that have any direct interest in Slavery. The very belt of country whose oppression so inflames their gall and stirs their venom, is the very region that treats them with the most contempt and loathing.

Yet the explanation, after all, is simple enough. Copperheads are more hated in the Border States than elsewhere, for precisely the reason that traitors are. The consequences of this rebellion have told hardest there. They have been felt in families disunited, in society distracted, in desolated fields, in paralyzed industry, in depreciated property, in a constant sense of danger and ever-harassing fears. The rebellion has come home to "the business and bosoms" of the loyal men of the Border States in a manner hard to realize by people at our safe distance; and as those direful experiences have gone on, it has grown to be hated with a proportionate intensity. That hatred, in like degree, attaches to all who sympathize with the rebellion. The same spirit which impels the loyal Kentuckians to fight with such peculiar fierceness on the field of battle, forbids them to endure any factious talk for peace at home. They are in no mood to make any distinction between the Copperhead and the traitor; they will abide neither.

It is a great mistake to judge the present feeling of the people of the three loyal Slave States by their Representatives in the last Congress. These Representatives were chosen at a period when public opinion had not had time to form itself definitely in regard to the new condition of affairs sprung upon the country by the rebel outbreak. The great concern of the day was to keep the States, which in the confusion seemed to be trembling on the verge of the vortex, from being drawn in. To that end men were put forward as candidates least likely to offend old prejudices. Particularly was this the case in Kentucky. There the first avowed position—by necessity it is said—was that of mere neutrality. This soon was changed for Conditional Unionism; and it was at that stage that the nominations and elections for Congress were made. But since then, under the heavy pressure of the war, the loyalty of the State has been continually hardening, so that now there is none of any better quality anywhere. The recent Convention, in which ninety-four counties were represented, nominated for Governor as sterling and unqualified a Union man as can be found; its resolutions, which were unanimously adopted, unreservedly pledged the entire resources of the State toward the crushing of the rebellion, and in every particular came square up to the highest mark of patriotic principle. The nominees for the next Congress will be men of very different temper from those which so troublesomely figured in the last. We say this without the slightest reference to the sentiments of the loyal masses on any Slavery question. It is open to dispute how far the progress of the war has affected the attachment of the people to the institution; but it is enough to know that whatever that attachment is, it is subordinate to the devotion now borne to the nationality. Missouri seems to have made up her mind for emancipation, and most wisely too; but the loyalty of Kentucky may be just as thorough, though she determines otherwise. Loyalty of the true quality is, in no essential respect, connected with either Slavery or Anti-Slavery. It has nothing to do with conditions or contingencies of any sort. It holds true to the Government all the same, whether approving or disapproving of any particular policy of the Administration.

It is just this devotion of principle which distinguishes the disposition of the loyal men of the Border States from that of the Copperheads. The latter pretend that because the Emancipation Proclamation has been issued, and habeas corpus suspended, and this, and that, and the other act has been done or left undone, therefore the war should cease, and terms be made with the rebels, even though involving the independence of the Confederacy. The loyal men of the Border States, though many or most of them may agree with them in disapproving certain measures of the Administration, yet do not see in that any reason for abandoning the war, and thus consummating disunion. They recognize that there is no sort of relation between the grievance and the action these Copperheads would found upon it, whether in the way of remedy or retribution. They know that it is precisely the action of the crew who should scuttle the ship because they are not exactly pleased with the orders of the captain. These Border States have suffered too long and have too much still at stake, to tolerate any such infatuation. Northern Copperheads will do well henceforth to keep carefully out of their limits. They must content themselves with disporting in colder latitudes. But even here they had better make the best of their time, for the prospect is it will be very short. They are fast becoming the object of a popular detestation that not any living thing, infinitely less any creeping thing, can brave.

Loyal Leagues.

There cannot be too many organizations of loyal citizens, pledged to the support of the country, in this its hour of trial. There may be inconvenience, however, in the commingling of names, and the consequent misdirection of individual effort.

The history of this movement is briefly this: Loyal clubs were first instituted in Philadelphia and Washington. The movement was speedily followed in this City. The Loyal Union Club was formed, into which members were elected from the prominent, wealthy and influential classes. This is, strictly speaking, a "Club," which cultivates and inculcates loyalty by personal and social influences. In this mode it can accomplish valuable results to the country. Too many of our preëxisting clubs, as is well known, were not disinclined to encourage principles not recognized in loyal circles. The terms of admittance to the Loyal Club are $25 initiation fee, and $25 per annum. A club-house is to be provided, and we are glad to learn that the project meets with general favor.

Following closely upon this path of duty a number of active and influential citizens issued a call for a mass meeting of citizens at Cooper Institute on Friday, the 6th inst. The meeting was a great success, and was followed by the superb ovation at the Academy of Music, on the 14th inst. The mission of this organization is a popular one, intended to combine a principle and a pledge of unconditional loyalty to the country under every phase of its fortunes.

The following resolution, adopted at the meeting of the 6th of March, at the Cooper Institute, for the first time distinctly adopted the principle of a pledge of loyal duty:

> 6. Resolved, That this meeting, under solemn convictions of duty, and in a firm reliance on the justice of that Providence which guides and guards Governments and peoples, does hereby resolve itself into a Loyal League of Union Citizens, pledged to an unconditional support of the Government in all its constitutional efforts to suppress the rebellion, and an uncompromising opposition to treason in whatever form it appears.

It was in support of this pledge that the emphatic enunciations of Van Buren, Brady, Johnson and Wright produced the reaction in public sentiment, which has given so much confidence and hope of a reëstablished common bond of union among all men who desire to see the rebellion suppressed. The unparalleled success which has attended this movement, inaugurated under the auspices of Gen. Scott and the leading merchants, bankers and patriotic citizens of New-York, has led to a permanent organization of great strength, and our citizens may look for further examples of its zeal and enterprise in the work it has undertaken.

But the zeal of our loyal citizens does not stop here. Another league has subsequently sprung into existence, founded on the names of numerously signed papers left at the newspaper offices, in which each subscriber pledges himself to the performance of loyal duty to the country. The signers of this pledge met last night and gave a formal organization to their efforts. It will be noticed, however, that this meeting has no connection with the Cooper Institute organization of March 6, or with the meeting at the Academy on the 14th.

If all these various Union Associations work in unison and with a single spirit of patriotic duty, it will not be easy to estimate the extent of the benefit they will confer on the national cause.

Local loyal associations in the several Wards of the City are in process of organization, and we feel assured that good results will follow. Let it be borne in mind always that these offshoots from the great meeting of the 6th of March, to be successful, must follow the example there inculcated of union, harmony and unconditional loyalty. All thoughts of party, all objects of personal interest, must give way before the one great principle of devotion to the Constitution, and of uncompromising opposition to treason.

Col. Higginson's Blacks.—One of our contemporaries had a large tale from South Carolina, a fortnight ago, concerning a force of 5,000 loyal blacks, who were on the eve of marching into one of the densest slave districts in the South, calling upon their oppressed brethren, and taking vengeance upon their oppressors. It turned out afterward that a thousand or more negro troops from Hilton Head had gone down to the Florida coast, to repeat on the same field the deeds which Col. Higginson narrated in such glowing English a month ago. This week a reliable passenger from the South brought news that the blacks had been defeated in Georgia or Florida—which another journal of lively imagination amplified into the news that the whole force of negroes had been captured, and that, in accordance with Jeff. Davis' retaliatory proclamation, they and all their white officers had been hung. Visions of a thousand blacks hanging on a thousand trees, and a hundred whites in readiness for a like fate, were conjured up, and a small number of our quiet citizens were greatly excited.

The news this morning, from Port Royal, dispels these clouds. The black brigade, at latest advices, was marching on. They had taken several important points, captured prisoners, munitions and supplies, and were still driving the enemy before them. Fernandina, Florida, at the mouth of the St. Mary's River, was the point where they landed, and we suppose they are driving the rebels along the banks of that stream. They have a capital field for operations there—one rich with the spoils of war, and almost free from its perils. We have no doubt that a brigade of negroes—or for that matter a brigade of white men—could drive all the rebels from the sovereign State of Florida, and seize, occupy and possess it in the name of President Lincoln.

Untimely Discussions.—Much grief makes our neighbor of the Tribune unreasonable. He calls on us, in rather a querulous tone, to "state just how much space he has consumed" in discussing the question whether the President could, or could not, withdraw his Emancipation Proclamation in case the rebel States should return to their allegiance. Our impression is, that five or six columns have been "consumed" in that way; but we regard the whole of it, be the same more or less, as having been worse than wasted. The question has not the slightest practical importance at present, and its discussion only tends to divert the public mind from what is important, viz.: The necessity of crushing the rebellion by force of arms.

We beg to congratulate the Tribune on the return of "Truth and Courage" to its columns. Since the person assuming that pretentious pseudonym pledged himself to prove, by the evidence of a Senator, that Secretary Seward does send dispatches abroad without first submitting them to the President, he has preserved a prudent silence. This new controversy, however, draws him afresh from his concealment. He uses half a column of the Tribune's space in contesting the Tribune's position. Among other things, he says:

> "As to this trouble, which some gentlemen, with particularly long telescopes, have discovered in the future, namely, that the Southern States, when reduced to obedience, may reëstablish Slavery within their limits by State laws, I will only say that it appears very clear to me that it cannot happen, for it would not be tolerated. No Government could be deemed republican, in form or in fact, whose Constitution would permit it to reduce to Slavery any portion of its free people."

The Tribune meets this with a calm reassertion of its own position—thus:—

> "Our original conviction that our Government is to-day at perfect liberty to accept the unconditional return to loyalty of any State or States now in rebellion, and that those States will thereupon become supreme over their own inhabitants not in the service of the United States, has been nowise shaken, nor do we perceive a necessity for any new arguments to establish it."

We hope the Tribune, for its own sake, will be content with this emphatic reiteration of its own views. The point, as we have said already, will have no practical importance until some rebel State does offer to return to the Union:—and that period, apparently not close at hand, is likely to be still longer delayed by such discussions as those to which the Tribune is just now so greatly addicted.

The Rebel Despotism.—The Richmond Enquirer, of Wednesday last, says:

> "The Conscription officers have been quite busy for a few days hereabouts hauling in the nice young men."

It would seem that the rebels have allowed this jovial class of mortals to wander about at large until the very last. The war was opened by the hot bloods of Carolina chivalry in Charleston harbor two years ago. After that the local militia, composed of the middling orders, was called in. Then came the first Conscription law, which picked out victims from all classes, styles and sizes, with considerable impartiality, but bore especially upon the great body of poor whites throughout the Southern States, who had never entered willingly or heartily into the war. Then, by general and local laws, this system was strengthened and extended until not a man in all rebeldom, between the ages of 16 and 60, could say his body or his soul was his own, or could say they were not Jeff. Davis'. Beside thus making a clean sweep of the whites, they pounced upon the black, brown and red residents of the sunny South, and impresed them into all sorts of military work, and even into carrying the musket itself. Now, after all this, it seems they are driven to the dire necessity of conscripting a class of beings whom propriety or humanity had heretofore induced them to overlook or pass by—the nice young men.

When the rebellion is propped up on such legs as nature ordinarily endows the nice young man with, we may be sure it is tottering. There are not a few of this class in Richmond and the other Southern cities, and if they are all trotted into the rebel army, it will be considerably increased in numbers, if not in strength. But the nice young men will very soon be exhausted—physically as well as in numbers—and then, what will the rebels do?

The Ohio Legislature.

PROPOSED SUPPRESSION OF A COPPERHEAD.

Cincinnati, Friday, March 20.

A special dispatch from Columbus, to the Gazette, says a resolution has been offered in the House, expelling Otto Dresel, for offering resolutions disloyal in sentiment and insulting to the country. It is thought action will be taken on the resolution to-day.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

Arrival of Released Prisoners from Richmond.

The Condition of Affairs in the South.

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCHES.

Washington, Friday, March 20.

AFFAIRS IN THE SOUTH.

Three hundred and seventy released prisoners arrived from Richmond to-day. One of them, very intelligent—Mr. Seeds, of Cincinnati, and a New-Orleans pilot—mentions the steady and significant removal of machinery for manufacturing ordnance and small arms from Richmond to Northern Georgia. The removal of ordnance-stores in large quantities has also been going on for some time. The possibility of the transfer of the seat of war below Virginia is recognized by the authorities at Richmond. He mentions, as an evidence of the general distress, the extraordinary numbers of poor women and cyprians which surround the armies and infest the towns all through the South. These are mostly soldiers' wives. He saw among his guards at Salisbury, frequently, men with cloth shoes, burst open, walking their beats in the snow. For the well-worn brogans on his feet he was repeatedly offered fourteen dollars. One of his friends present, pointing to the suit he had on, made by himself, of blankets, in prison, said he had been offered a hundred and fifty dollars for it often.

Upon the interesting point of the duration of the war, Mr. Seeds said it might last six months after the next crop, but he thought it would be ended with that crop. If Vicksburgh should be taken, it would end almost immediately, for the armies would be cut off from their supply of meat, which is in Texas. He said every pound of meat eaten in the Richmond prisons came from there. He mentioned a conversation between Gen. Winder and another officer, well authenticated, in which Winder said it would be ended by August.

Mr. Seeds declares that there is a general feeling among the soldiers from all the Southern States, favorable to ending the war and returning to the Union. They say they made a mistake in going into the war, and would never have done so if it had not been for South Carolina. When the news of our enrollment law reached them, they said the fate of the South was sealed, for under that law we would raise men enough to smash them, and close the contest immediately. He frequently heard soldiers say that they were willing to be whipped back into the Union, they had suffered so much out of it.

Mr. Seeds says that Gen. D. Hill is in command at Goldsboro' N. C., and has lately been heavily reinforced from the Army of the Rappahannock. A. P. Hill is at Charleston. Longstreet's corps, consisting of three divisions, recently passed through Richmond to Petersburgh.

The prisons in the South are full of deserters, awaiting trial by Court-martial. Military executions are so common as to cease being commented upon by the papers.

Gens. Willich and Stoughton, and seventy-five officers of various grades, are in the Libby Prison. Seventeen of our officers, held as hostages for Col. Zarvona, (the French lady,) are at hard labor in the Penitentiary at Richmond.

RECEIPTS OF GOLD.

The receipts of Gold for duties on imports are rapidly increasing. Gen. Spinner, United States Treasurer, has refused to receive any more on which interest is to be paid. Instructions will be issued to-morrow to the Sub-Treasurers in New-York, Boston and Philadelphia, to refuse deposits on interest.

PAYMENT OF THE ARMY.

The Secretary of the Treasury has placed in the hands of the Pay-master General here a sufficient amount of money to pay the entire army up to the first of March. Sufficient has also been sent and reached its destination, to pay the entire army of the West.

GEN. BURNSIDE.

Gen. Burnside's destination has been misstated. He is not going to North Carolina; he is not going to Fortress Monroe; nor in the direction of either place.

AFFAIRS IN THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.

General Order No. 27, just issued at Falmouth by Gen. Hooker, among other things releases Private Charles McDonald, of Company B, Thirty-eighth New-York Volunteers, from custody, and returns him to duty, and declares that as the Inspection reports of the following named regiments and battery show that they have greatly improved in condition since the promulgation of General Order No. 18, of March 3, they are relieved from the disability as to leaves of absence and furloughs placed upon them by paragraph fifth of that Order, viz: the Thirty-fourth, Forty-second, Fifty-ninth and Eighty-eighth Regiments New-York Volunteers; Sixty-ninth and One Hundred and Fifty-fifth Regiments Pennsylvania Volunteers, and the Twelfth Ohio Volunteer battery.

THE MEXICAN CANARD.

The Government places no reliance upon the report of the taking of the City of Mexico by the French. Official intelligence of a late date mentions the contemplated movement, but states that it would not be made before the middle of March. This precludes belief in the report of the fall of the capital.

QUARTERMASTER'S SUPPLIES.

With a view to obtain, at short notice, and on the best terms, supplies for the Quartermaster's Department by purchase in open market, as may be required by the exigencies of the service, Assistant-Quartermaster Tompkins requests that price lists of articles in their line be furnished weekly by all dealers in hardware, drugs, lumber, leather, harness and saddlery. The lists to be corrected according to the fluctuations of the market.

DISMISSED FROM THE SERVICE.

The sentence of the Court-Martial dismissing from the service Capt. Walter B. Ives, of the Seventy-ninth New-York, for cowardice at the battle of Fredericksburgh, has been approved by the President.

By command of Gen. Halleck, Maj. Delozier, Fourth United States Infantry, has been dismissed from the service for misbehavior before the enemy.

BOUNTIES.

Gov. Seymour has appointed Dr. Jas. L. Babcock, of Albany, agent for the State to attend to the bounty of its sick, wounded and discharged soldiers.

HOTEL MATTERS.

The National Hotel lease and furniture were sold yesterday to the keeper of the Ashland House, Philadelphia, for one hundred thousand dollars. Mr. Roessle, of Albany, famous as the keeper of the Delavan, while here this week, selected a site for a monster hotel which he would like to build, and publicly declared that if he could find a capitalist to unite with him in the enterprise, he would return to him monthly a larger profit on his investment than he could get for it anywhere else in America. He said.

he would establish, in connection with the hotel, a garden and forcing houses, like those which have made the Delavan famous for its small fruits and vegetables in season and out of season.

GEN. FARNSWORTH.

Gen. FARNSWORTH, of Illinois, will speak at Hartford on Monday evening next, at the Union demonstration.

NOT WOUNDED.

The report that Lieut.-Col. DOSTER was wounded in AVERILL's cavalry battles is incorrect.

ASSISTANT PROVOST-MARSHALS.

Col. RUGGLES and Lieut.-Col. MCKEEVER, of the Adjutant-General's Department, have been assigned to duty as Assistants to Provost-Marshal-General FRY.

THE DISTRICT COURT.

Judge WYLIE and his associate judges met to-day, and decided to appoint to-morrow RETURN J. MEIGS, of Tampico, Clerk of the District Supreme Court. The President has requested this appointment.

Premium on Gold.—The Subscriber, who cannot change his prices with the fluctuations of gold without incurring enormous expense in advertising the changes, is compelled to sell his Pens at old prices. Thinking his customers entitled to the benefit of the premium on gold, rather than the Wall-street debasers of the best currency this country ever had, he now offers to all remitting the amount of their orders in gold, the full premium in this City on the day when received. In this way he hopes to do the country and his customers some good without injuring himself, for the MORTON PEN cannot be made without gold. When Paper Money is sent, United States is preferred over any other.

DEAFNESS

NOISES IN THE HEAD,

Diseases of the Eye, Ear & Throat,

CATARRH CURED

BY

DR. VON EISENBERG.

From the Journal of Commerce.

EXCITING NEWS FOR THE DEAF.—An instrument called Dr. Von Eisenberg's Air Passage Expander and Regulator, a gigantic machine, weighing nearly five hundred pounds, about five feet in height, a most wonderful apparatus for restoring sight and hearing, has just arrived for Dr. Von Eisenberg, the celebrated Oculist and Aurist, and will be on exhibition at the Doctor's office, No. 816 Broadway, for a few days previous to its use. The instrument is constructed decidedly on the most scientific principles. To give a detailed description would require a greater space than we can now spare. Our Oculist and Aurist seems to do everything in the line of his profession on a gigantic scale. The new instrument for restoring hearing to the deaf and sight to the blind is so constructed that it cannot fail to open the most obstructed air-passages. His new consulting rooms, No. 816 Broadway, are correspondingly magnificent, and his practice as Aurist and Oculist large and eminently successful.

From the New-York Evening Express, Feb. 14, 1863.

SENSATION AMONG THE DEAF.—The unrivaled skill of Dr. Von Eisenberg, the far-famed Oculist and Aurist, of No. 816 Broadway, has made quite a sensation among the Deaf and Blind by his wonderful cures, which attract the Deaf, Blind and those suffering from Chronic Catarrh, from all parts of the Union to his office. The number of his certificates of really wonderful cures swells daily. For the benefit of sufferers, we submit the following, which requires no comment:

NEW-YORK, Feb. 9, 1863.

I have been completely deaf in one ear, and partially so in the other, for above seventeen years, with a disagreeable discharge from both ears, combined with continual rumbling noise in the head, for which I have been treated by a most eminent practitioner in the City without the slightest relief.

I consulted Dr. Von Eisenberg, but I must candidly say that I had no faith in his success when I did so. It is, therefore, due to Dr. Von Eisenberg to acknowledge that I am entirely cured; also, that he displayed that skill and knowledge which have procured for him such an unrivaled reputation. As I have had an opportunity of comparing his mode of treatment with that of others, I can truly state that it is not only superior, but the principles which direct his mode of restoring the hearing are, in my opinion, certain.

JOHN TAYLOR,
No. 13 Livingston-st., Brooklyn.

NEW-YORK, July 19, 1862.

This certifies that my mother has been for some time afflicted with partial deafness, suffering from pain, and rumbling noises in the head, together with other indications of a total loss of hearing. Dr. Von Eisenberg removed from her ears a great quantity of matter, together with coagulated blood, relieving her instantaneously, and all without pain. It is with grateful thanks that I give this testimony to his skill.

CARROLL J. POST, No. 28 South-st.

No. 188 MERCER-ST., NEW-YORK.

J. E. VON EISENBERG, M. D.—Dear Doctor: I have been afflicted with total deafness, and was induced to pay you a visit. No one can imagine my delight when, after one operation, my hearing was suddenly, and without pain, restored to me, for which I feel very grateful. After being totally deaf—almost shut out from the pleasure of using so necessary a sense—to have it returned, and to hear so distinctly, reflects great credit on you for the immense amount of skill you possess. I beg to thank you for what I can so truly appreciate. I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

EDWARD TEMPLE HARRISON.

NEW-YORK, Nov. 6, 1862.

DR. VON EISENBERG—Dear Sir: Before taking leave of you, after your most successful operation on my ear, allow me to express my sincere thanks that, by your scientific surgical performance, I am enabled to hear distinctly, and enjoy a pleasure of which I have long been deprived—over a year. May you be rewarded by being enabled to perform many similar, to benefit other sufferers, and to your own emolument.

Allow me to present my kindest regards, and assure you of my grateful remembrance. Respectfully,

A. McDONALD REYNOLDS,
Captain Marines, United States.

NEW-YORK, May 17, 1862.

I have much pleasure in being able to certify that I have suffered for a long time from Sclerotitis, and nearly complete loss of sight. I have consulted a great many, as well as visiting institutions, not only without benefit, but my case was given up as incurable. I despaired of ever recovering my sight, until hearing of Dr. Von Eisenberg's great cures. I determined to place myself under his care as a last resource. It resulted in a complete cure. From the skillful treatment, great care and attention which I experienced from the Doctor, I have no hesitation in recommending all those suffering from diseases of the eye to place themselves under Dr. Von Eisenberg's care, with a certainty of being completely cured. I shall be happy to bear personal testimony.

JOSEPH WALKER, Greenpoint.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

WILBOR'S COD LIVER OIL AND LIME

Has now been before the public for six years, and has steadily grown into favor and appreciation. This could not be the case unless the preparation was of undoubted and high intrinsic value. The combination of the Phosphate of Lime with pure Cod Liver Oil, as prepared by Dr. Wilbor, has produced a new phase in the treatment of Consumption, and all diseases of the lungs. This article can be taken by the most delicate invalid without creating the disgusting nausea which is such a prominent objection to the Cod Liver Oil when taken without Lime. This preparation is prescribed by the regular faculty, and sold by the proprietor, wholesale and retail.

SIMEON DRAPER, Auctioneer.

SCRANTON COAL AT AUCTION.

OFFICE OF THE DELAWARE, LACKAWANNA AND WESTERN RAILROAD COMPANY, NO. 35 WILLIAM-ST., NEW-YORK, March 16, 1863.

In continuation of the system of auction sales, this Company will offer at public auction, on WEDNESDAY, the 25th day of March, 1863, at 12 o'clock, at the room now used as the Merchants' Exchange, Nos. 26 and 28 Exchange-place, corner of William-st., by SIMEON DRAPER, Auctioneer, embracing all the usual sizes, and deliverable at their depot, Elizabethport, N. J., after the 1st of April next. They will repeat such auction sales on or about the 20th of each month, during the year 1863.

The sale will be positive. Each lot put up will be sold to the highest bidder; no bids, in any form whatever, being made for account of, or on behalf of the Company.

Fifty cents per ton, in bankable funds, to be paid at the time and place of sale, and the balance in like funds, on receiving the order for the coal, which must be called for within ten days thereafter, and the coal taken away within thirty days from the day of sale, unless navigation is obstructed. Buyers who wish, however, can have an additional thirty days for taking the delivery of their purchases, by making a further deposit of fifty cents per ton, within the ten days above specified. Interest, at 7 per cent. per annum, will in such case be charged on the balance, from the time stipulated for payment until paid; and twenty-five cents per ton to cover the expense of stocking the coal,—both to be paid on delivery of order.

The other conditions of sale will be substantially those hitherto accepted by all purchasers, by private contract, of coal deliverable at Elizabethport, so far as applicable. The coal will be delivered direct from the cars on their arrival from the mines, when practicable—otherwise from the stock. These conditions will be modified to meet the wants of ocean steamers, whose arrival cannot be definitely fixed.

With a reliable avenue from the Lackawanna and Wyoming Valleys to tide-water, open every day in the year, (Sundays excepted,) requiring but 12 hours for the transit of the trains, the advantages of such sales, and the superior condition in which the coal will be delivered, are so apparent, they cannot doubt this mode of selling will commend itself to the favorable consideration of both the trade and consumers, whose coöperation is respectfully invited.

HIGHLY IMPORTANT SALE OF OIL PAINTINGS.

PRIVATE COLLECTION OF MODERN PICTURES.

HENRY H. LEEDS & CO. will sell at auction, on THURSDAY and FRIDAY, March 26 and 27, at 7½ o'clock each EVENING, at the old Dusseldorf Gallery, No. 548 Broadway, highly important sale of Paintings, a private collection of modern pictures, probably the choicest and most extensive ever offered at public sale in the United States, consisting of works of the highest class, and by masters the most difficult to obtain, chiefly painted to order, and including specimens by

Geselchap, Weigmann, Dubufe, Von Sehon, Verheyden, Vermeulen, Kruseman, Gunther, Bilders of Utrecht, Van Hove, Leickert, Strobel, Denoter, Gerome, Wauters, Plumot, Hagelstein, Rosenboom, Lockhorst, De Bylandt, Genisson, Vervon, Schelfhout, Vaarnbergh, Reeckers, Hoppenbrower, Musin, Willems, Caron, Breton, Duvieux, Minguet, Pyna, E. C. Williams, Barland, Lawrence, Farrien, Beattie, Meadows, Armfield, Adams, J. W. Cole, Rogers, Weigall, &c., &c. Also, a fine work by Thomas Cole, and others of the American school. The paintings in the collection by Rosa Bonheur, E. Frere and others are now exceedingly difficult to obtain even in Europe, as it is understood those artists have orders for several years in advance, and it is presumed that the sale will be therefore interesting to those who are purchasing for foreign account. The Gallery will be open for public inspection from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M.; and as, from the reputation of this collection, a large attendance may be anticipated, we would invite those lovers of the arts, who wish to enjoy a favorable opportunity for inspection, to visit the exhibition as early as convenient.

SURE CURE—BY DR. POWERS, SUCCESSfully consulted with Dr. WARD, No. 12 Laight-st. Conducted on the plan of the Hospital des Veneriens, Paris, where those afflicted with any form of private disease can receive prompt treatment, without risk or exposure, viz.: Syphilis, gonorrhœa, gleet, strictures, ulcers, tumors, cancers, secondary and constitutional syphilis, diseases of the kidneys, &c., &c. Thirty years of extensive practice, exclusively devoted to the treatment of those complaints enable us to effect cures in cases where others of less experience have failed. Dr. Powers' Essence of Life restores the vigor of youth in four weeks. This marvelous agent restores manhood to the most shattered constitutions—physical disqualifications, impediments to marriage, thereby speedily cured. The men to consult, Drs. Ward and Powers, the champions and kings of venereal diseases, possessing the most certain, speedy and only effectual remedies in the world, guarantee a perfect cure, or no charge, in from one to three days. Established in 1840. N. B.—Those who have used their preventives are never without. Send for a circular. To Ladies.—Dr. Powers' Periodical Drops are a safe and certain remedy for monthly irregularities. The above remedies sent by mail. The afflicted should read their circular. Postage free, on receipt of a stamp. Cures warranted.

PRIVATE DISEASES CURED IN THE shortest possible time, by DR. WARD & CO., No. 12 Laight-st., near Canal, without the use of Mercury, loss of time or change of diet. Dr. WARD, from the hospitals of London, Paris and Edinburgh, is the discoverer of the only certain and reliable remedies for diseases of a private character. In 28 years' practice he has cured more cases of Secret Diseases and Wrong Treatment than all others combined. I can and will cure you in less time and expense than any one can or will, and those who have been robbed of their money and health, call; it will take but little money and time to restore you. If you have been unfortunate, call at once. By his special experience in this much-neglected branch of medical science, he is enabled to guarantee a cure in the most complicated cases. Recent cases of Gonorrhœa or Syphilis cured in a few days, without change of diet or hindrance from business. Secondary Syphilis—the last vestige eradicated without the use of Mercury. Involuntary emissions stopped in a short time. Sufferers from Impotency, or loss of sexual power, restored to full vigor in a few weeks. Permanently and speedily cured by a new treatment. Persons at a distance, failing to receive prompt treatment elsewhere, may get a permanent cure effected by writing a full diagnosis of their case, addressed to DR. WARD, No. 12 Laight-st., the only place. Call, send or write.

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP RESTORES the vigor of youth in four days. Restores manhood to the most shattered system. No. 3 Division-st., New-York, the only place. Beware of bogus Dr. Hunters. DR. JOHNSON, NO. 14 DUANE-ST., MAY be consulted with confidence on private diseases. Thirty years in one specialty enables him to guarantee speedy and permanent cures. N. DISEASES OF THE NERVOUS, SEMINAL, URINARY AND SEXUAL SYSTEMS.—New and reliable treatment—in Reports of the Howard Association—sent in sealed letter envelopes, free of charge. Address DR. J. SKILLIN HOUGHTON, Howard Association, Philadelphia, Pa.

PRIVATE CONSULTATION.—DR. HUNTER has, for thirty years, confined his attention to diseases of a certain class, in which he has treated no less than fifty thousand cases, without an instance of failure. His great remedy, HUNTER'S RED DROP, cures certain diseases, when regular treatment and all other remedies fail; cures without dieting or restriction in the habits of the patient; cures without the disgusting and sickening effects of all other remedies; cures in new cases in less than six hours; cures without the dreadful consequent effects of mercury, but possesses the peculiarly valuable property of annihilating the rank and poisonous taint that the blood is sure to absorb, unless his remedy is used. That is what he claims for it, and what no other will accomplish. Its value in this respect has become so well known, that scientific men in every department of medical knowledge begin to appreciate it, for hardly a week passes that he is not consulted by druggists, chemists and physicians, in regard to some pitiful patient who has exhausted the whole field of the faculty, and still the disease will appear. Its popularity is so great, that there is not a quack doctor in the City that has not attacked it; and when they find their lies are not so easily swallowed, they then pretend that they can make it. It is $1 a vial, and cannot be obtained genuine anywhere but at the old office, No. 3 Division-st. Book for 15 three-cent stamps, 300 pages, 100 colored illustrations. The best work out.

NAVY DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON CITY, March 2, 1863.

BUREAU OF ORDNANCE.—THIS BUREAU is desirous of ascertaining whether rifled cannon can be made of wrought iron of sufficient and uniform endurance and economy to warrant their being preferred to guns of cast iron only, or of cast iron strengthened with wrought iron.

Proposals will therefore be received from any manufacturers of forged iron to furnish a finished gun, or a block of metal from which the same may be finished.

The said gun, when finished, to weigh about 10,800 pounds, to be made into a gun throwing a projectile of 100 pounds, as used in cast iron rifled cannon of like weight; to be fired 1,000 times with service charges of the same weight and kind of powder as used in the Parrott 100-pounder—viz.: 10 pounds of No. 7—without bursting, or wearing in such a manner as to cause apprehensions of bursting.

The quality of metal, price and other terms, are to be stated clearly in the proposal forwarded.

The Bureau reserves the right to itself of accepting or rejecting any of the proposals.

The time for receiving the proposals is limited to thirty days from date, and proposals will only be received from persons actually engaged in the fabrication of wrought iron.

JOHN A. DAHLGREN,
Chief of Bureau.

A LOYAL LEAGUE.

Great Meeting at the Cooper Institute.

Addresses by Hon. A. J. Hamilton, of Texas, General John Cochrane, Hon. Roscoe Conkling and Others.

Approving Letters from Sigel and Fremont.

A meeting of loyal citizens, inferior in numbers only to the vast gathering which occupied the building a week ago, was held last night at Cooper Institute. As usual, the speaker's desk and the rear of the platform were draped in the American flag, aside from which there were no decorations whatever. Upon the platform were a few well-known citizens—John Jay, O. Johnson, B. F. Mudgett, Deputy Collector; Chas. A. Briggs, State Agent of Ohio under the administration of Gov. Chase; D. D. Field, and Col. Wm. S. Bliss.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. CHARLES BUTLER, who said:

MR. CHARLES BUTLER'S REMARKS.

FELLOW CITIZENS: In introducing the business of this evening, instead of giving you thoughts of my own, I propose to read to you an extract from and the closing remarks of that great and excellent speech made by DANIEL WEBSTER on the 16th of February, 1833, in reply to Mr. CALHOUN, on the resolutions submitted by Mr. CALHOUN, propounding the doctrine of secession. [Applause.] Mr. BUTLER then read the following extracts of WEBSTER'S speech delivered at the date above mentioned:

MR. PRESIDENT: If the friends of nullification should be able to propagate their opinions and give them practical effect, they would, in my judgment, prove themselves the most skillful "architects of ruin," the most effectual extinguishers of high-raised expectation, the greatest blasters of human hopes, that any age has produced. They would stand up to proclaim, in tones which would pierce the ears of half the human race, that the last great experiment of Representative Government had failed. They would send forth sounds, at the hearing of which the doctrine of the divine right of kings would feel, even in its grave, a returning sensation of vitality and resuscitation. Millions of eyes, of those who now feed their inherent love of liberty on the success of the American example, would turn away from beholding our dismemberment, and find no place on earth whereon to rest their gratified sight. Amidst the incantations and orgies of nullification, secession, disunion and revolution, would be celebrated the funeral rites of constitutional and republican liberty.

But, Sir, if the Government do its duty, if it act with firmness and moderation, these opinions cannot prevail. Be assured, Sir, be assured that, among the political sentiments of this people, the love of union is still uppermost. They will stand fast by the Constitution, and by those who defend it. I rely on no temporary expedients, on no political combination; but I rely on the true American feeling, the genuine patriotism of the people, and the imperative decision of the public voice. Disorder and confusion, indeed, may arise; scenes of commotion and contest are threatened, and perhaps may come. With my whole heart, I pray for the continuance of the domestic peace and quiet of the country. I desire, most ardently, the restoration of affection and harmony to all its parts. I desire that every citizen of the whole country may look to this Government with no other sentiments than those of grateful respect and attachment. But I cannot yield, even to kind feelings, the cause of the Constitution, the true glory of the country, and the great trust which we hold in our hands for succeeding ages. If the Constitution cannot be maintained without meeting these scenes of commotion and contest, however unwelcome, they must come. We cannot—we must not—we dare not omit to do that which, in our judgment, the safety of the Union requires. Not regardless of consequences, we must yet meet consequences; seeing the hazards which surround the discharge of public duty, it must yet be discharged. For myself, Sir, I shun no responsibility justly devolving on me, here or elsewhere, in attempting to maintain the cause. I am bound to it by indissoluble ties of affection and duty, and I shall cheerfully partake in its fortunes and its fate. I am ready to perform my own appropriate part, whenever and wherever the occasion may call on me, and to take my chance among those upon whom blows may fall first and fall thickest. I shall exert every faculty I possess in aiding to prevent the Constitution from being nullified, destroyed, or impaired; and even should I see it fall, I will still, with a voice feeble, perhaps, but earnest as ever issued from human lips, and with fidelity and zeal which nothing shall extinguish, call on the people to come to its rescue.

In commenting on the extracts read, Mr. BUTLER continued as follows: While the great statesman who uttered these prophetic words sleeps quietly beneath the sod of his own Marshfield, undisturbed by the hellish incantations and orgies of secession, and is happily spared the sight of the attempt to destroy "the Constitution and republican liberty" of his country—it fell to the lot of the only son and inheritor of his name to fall under its blows, which consigned him to a premature, though an honorable grave. He, too, sleeps by the side of his father. Who of us could then have believed that we should so soon be called upon to make a response to this prophetic voice? Our assemblage this evening is an answer to this voice. We are the people, and we come in answer to this voice to the rescue of our country. This Government is to be saved by the people, and not by the politicians. It is the people, and they only, who can save it, and they will save it. The Union, the whole Union, and nothing but the Union—under the flag of freedom—is their watchword. To give expression and force to this will of the people, organization is necessary—"Loyal National Leagues"—and he proposes this evening to inaugurate one of this character. To preside over your deliberations as Chairman, it is fitting to choose a representative man—one who reflects "the true American feeling—the genuine patriotism of the people"—one who, having achieved for himself honorable fame in civil and political life, when the first blow was struck against the life of "constitutional and republican liberty"—sprang to his feet, and offered himself a willing sacrifice in their defence. His voice rallied around him an ardent and patriotic band, and he led them forth to battle. Having fulfilled his duty in the field, he has returned to us disabled by his service, but still desiring to serve his country. He is now present, to animate us with his example. I introduce him now to you in the person of Gen. JOHN COCHRANE.

Upon motion, Mr. ISAAC H. BAILEY was chosen Secretary.

On motion of Mr. M. E. DODGE, Jr., a committee of five was appointed by the chair to draft Constitution, By-laws, &c., after which the following letters were read:

LETTER FROM GEN. SIGEL.

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 20, 1863.

I cannot be present at the inauguration of the Loyal National League this evening, but I send my best wishes, and request you to enroll my name among its members.

I believe that the self-preservation of the North and the preservation of republican principles on this Continent have made this war, on the part of the United States Government, necessary; and that there can be no rest until our arms have triumphantly established the rights of man and the majesty of the law over the whole South.

All the talent and energy, the wealth and resources of the people should be laid on the altar of the nation; and if the Government will employ all these agencies, and trust in men of energy and character, unfettered by petty jealousies, to break the ranks of the enemy in front and at home, this war will be speedily ended.

We must have the sword as well as the sharp pen—the strong arm as well as the strong and fearless mind—to help us in this terrible struggle. The people must awaken those who sleep, and stir up those who are creeping along instead of marching onward with self-relying boldness.

I believe in the Monroe doctrine, in the Butler code, in the President's Proclamation, in the good will and perseverance of the people, in the undaunted courage of our volunteers, in the final vindication of the honest, the just and the brave, in the liberation of the down-trodden and the slave, and in the overthrow and death of the Southern oligarchy.

Respectfully,
F. SIGEL, Major-General.

LETTER FROM GEN. FREMONT.

MY DEAR SIR: I have to thank you for your note and the kind invitation of yourself and the Committee to the meeting this evening, but I beg you to accept my excuses for being unable to attend.

I need hardly say that I sympathize cordially with your objects, and will be happy to coöperate with, and aid you by any means in my power. Yours very truly,

J. C. FREMONT.

SEVERAL VOICES.—From whom do those letters come; we hear nothing back here.

HON. H. B. STANTON, DEPUTY COLLECTOR.—Mr. PRESIDENT, give us the names of the parties from whom those letters come. I want the editors of the TIMES and Herald to hear them. [Hisses and cries of "Put him out," "Dry up," &c.]

Some considerable confusion ensued, during which Mr. STANTON called, excitedly, for "the names;" and others, less inquisitive but equally demonstrative, vociferated their desire that Mr. STANTON should "simmer down," "bag his head," and perform sundry personal movements which would facilitate his egress from the Hall, and restore quiet.

After a little, the President stated that the letters were from Gens. FREMONT and SIGEL, and, as they spoke for themselves, needed no further explanation from him.

Upon taking the Chair, Gen. COCHRANE was greeted with great applause, and spoke as follows:

SPEECH OF GEN. JOHN COCHRANE.

GENTLEMEN OF THE LOYAL NATIONAL LEAGUE: I have but few words to address to you to-night. I did not come here for the purpose of making a speech, nor of expatiating at length upon the great subjects which fill your hearts and occupy your minds, for with the whispering of the dramatic muse I say,

"Rude am I in my speech,
And little blessed with the set phrase of peace,
* * * * * *
And little of this great world can I speak,
More than pertains to feats of broil and battle."

But wherever, throughout this whole land, I look upon my assembled fellow-citizens—the great civic army of peace—my thoughts revert with constancy to that faithful band that, in front of yonder enemy, submits to every inclemency, yields to no vicissitude, but in every event, under every circumstance, with bosom armed in the panoply of patriotism, have offered themselves a sacrifice to the safety and unity of the country. [Applause.] I speak to you of the soldier in arms. [Renewed applause.] I speak to you of his stern endurance—of his anxious solicitude—of his efforts—of his perils—of his death, for the comforts which you enjoy. [Applause.] I speak to you of men who, here, have banded themselves frequently in array against each other—partisans—of different political principles and creeds, and yet who unite shoulder to shoulder, under one flag, and with flashing bayonets, knowing no divisions—no party rallying cry, but the great cry of the country, "Save or we are lost." [Applause.] Nay, nay; when, after the battle has been waged, and their rank set in array, no question has been asked by the soldier of his comrade, "of what party were you in yonder civil State?"—but with the sternness of war and determination for victory—Democrat, Republican, Abolitionist, Emancipationist—all Americans have advanced to the one motto, "Victory shall be ours, and the rebellion shall be crushed." [Applause.] And if more were necessary to teach us the folly of political divisions when our country is in extremity—if anything in addition were needed to-night to explain why all should be sacrificed but personal and political devotion to the contest upon the common altar of our suffering country, I would invoke the spirit of that man now departed from among us, whose words have reached us to-night—I speak of the great WEBSTER—setting where party prevails no longer, telling Americans that as Americans only can they maintain the American Government. [Applause.] The voices of the dead proclaim the great truth to the living; they who have preceded us, the fathers as well as the commentators upon their works, announce that there can be no success save in action; that there can be no successful action save in unity, and that in the accord of sentiment, and in the unanimity of mind must it be now as ever it has been, that a great people, striking for the great truths which control a Government, and influence the destinies of a race, must advance in the cause which they have adopted with a united and undivided front. [Applause.] Then members of this Loyal League, I speak to you to-night, not as members of political parties, not as those in whose minds even the reminiscence of political division is present, but to those who forget all, ignoring the long and dreary paths, that we may at length reach a brilliant future; I speak to you that we, united, and influenced by the combined action, nerved to vigorous strength, may lay down at your feet and trample in the dust those political divisions now kept alive by demagogues and traitors; [applause;] that with one common effort we may declare that this people is and should be a united, vigorous, independent and integral people. [Renewed applause.] Now, it occurs to me that much has been said, even by our friends, as boding the conduct of the people in this great contest and inferentially as of great encouragement to ourselves, that there is a great reaction throughout this land. A reaction! Toward what, and from what? From the causes and principles of rebellion, and toward the principles and virtues of a common loyalty—a reaction from demolition and revolt to loyalism and integrity. Far from it. My friends there has been no reaction. The reaction is in the mind of the lukewarm—of the doubtful—of the oblique. The great heart of the people, from the earliest initiation—the first original moment of this rebellion—has been right. [Applause.] It never, never was wanting. The people have understood this better than the politicians and the statesmen; for the people have thought with their hearts, while politicians have speculated and combined with their minds. [Applause.] And from the first moment of this controversy, my word for it, had the true measure been adopted—that of suppressing the rebellion and securing to us the victory—the people would have risen in masses this country over. [Applause.] What! We educate the people to resistance—rebellion? Nay, it has been the people who have educated the Administration. [Applause.] There is no reaction. A singular combination of circumstances induced a certain set of lukewarm and doubtful gentlemen to suppose that the quietude of the people meant doubt in regard to the issues, and the character of this controversy; but as they glided from their holes, it was then that the honesty of the people, surprised, lifted its heels upon their heads, and the State was saved. The people stand where they ever stood, firm, true and honest by their country and their whole country. A war precipitated upon us by rebellion! A rebellion significant of what? Significant of a revolt of a single State? A civil war to secure redress for an asserted or proclaimed grievance? Nay, nay; but a determination on the part of a whole section and region of country to shake off the yoke of Government, to proclaim independence to itself—to disturb the course of law—to avert the currents of commerce—to set at naught the institutions of America—to deny her laws and allegiance to the great principle of a free and independent Government! It is something more than rebellion; it is something more than civil war; it is a contest precipitated by rebels, and in which we are engaged for the great rights of humanity and mankind. [Loud applause.] From its very nature it knows no compromise. [Applause.] From its very nature it cannot be settled. There is no way out, except the way through. [Renewed applause.] There is no argument but the bayonet;—there is no voice that will convey reason to those in arms against us, but the explosion of ordnance in the field. [Applause.] When our armies have reached yonder Gulf—when our soldiers shall reside at home in the palaces of the rebels—[applause]—when "Yankee Doodle" shall be known and proclaimed throughout the savannahs of the South—[applause]—when the "down-trodden wood and nutmeg-peddling Yankee" shall be the lord of those plains—[applause]—then, and not till then, will this war be ended. [Applause.] Speak of compromise! Compromise what and with whom? Do you not know that when the misled people of the South were Union men, and were anxious that this Government should be preserved, that their political leaders were enabled, in the face of the efforts of conservative men—as they proclaimed themselves, and honestly so too, to carry these States out of this Union without arms, without experiment, in doubt, in gloom, these men the vetruvinsee of ruin, carried that country in the face of this Government; and do you suppose that they, having now no divided body in their rear, carrying with them a united South, and having the experience of over eighteen months of—if not a successful, at least an equal war—will now consent to a compromise, and to accept the terms which they imperiously objected to at the first? No—no; it is not that only; it is that they scorn, contemn and despise the peddling Yankee. They scorn and contemn and spit upon the flag, which they pronounce to be a rag, and exclaim, that when the war shall cease, they would hold intercourse with them, but they will do so holding their nose. Is there a man here who will accept the issue of these men of the South, that they will not meet with us? [Voices—"No!"] No; the issue is that we will not live with them. And that issue is now in process of determination. It is being determined and adjusted by yonder armies in the field. It is being determined by these armies, at the North. Give me a united people. Give me a devoted people who knowing their rights dare to maintain them, and will venture their cause against every earthly power that time can place against it. [Loud applause.] It may be sooner, it may be later, but the determination is fixed and unalterable. Either now or hereafter the time will come when this Government shall be reunited, and the Stars and Stripes be once more the emblem of a great and happy people. [Loud applause.] Now, fellow-citizens and members of this National Loyal League, I well recollect that when to utter the sentiment that a people at war should use every means to secure victories over its enemies was pronounced to be Abolitionism—emancipation—and that no person could speak even with bated breath of the propriety of employing those means without being met with the stigma, and of being impressed into the ranks of the despised. There was a time when you dared not, so peculiar and sensitive were the nerves of our politicians, proclaim that even a black mule of the enemy should be used, much less proclaim that a black man should be used. Now, the country opening its eyes to the facts, announces that it always believed that the masses had always adjudged, and knew to be true, that if we are to pursue victory, the policy of victory must be adopted. [Applause.] And if we would destroy our enemy, we should adopt every means of weakening his and augmenting our own strength. [Applause.] How stands the case? Let me give you a few figures. They will not detain you long; they are as interesting as tropes on this occasion. The figures are from our census, taken in 1850, and prepared by a skillful hand, and I give you the results. We have in these Northern States, or the loyal States of the Union, four millions of loyal whites between the ages of eighteen and forty-five. And in the South, or disloyal States, there are one million and three hundred thousand whites between the ages of eighteen and forty-five. Thus you will see that we are more than three to one. Could we conquer—could we subject the South, even with that proportion of men in our favor? It may be that we could; it would be extremely doubtful, however. In their own fastnesses they had allies; these allies were the blacks. Now these blacks or slaves within those disloyal States numbered three and a half millions—and of that three and a half millions, two millions were laborers, plantation hands, mechanics, artisans, and others. Of those two millions, perhaps three hundred thousand were employed in domestic service, leaving one million seven hundred thousand of men to be employed in subsisting 1,300,000 warriors. These men and women are actively engaged every moment in the day in procuring the subsistence of the army of the South. Thus, they have in the South some three millions of men consisting of black laborers and warriors; or in other words, we have four millions of whites in the North, and three millions of whites and blacks in the South. Could we conquer them by any such proportion? No. It was too clear and apparent. There is no instance in history; there is nothing upon which to ground a belief in any rational mind, that with such a proportion between the North and the South, victory would perch upon our banner, and that the result would be in favor of her institutions. But, then, fellow-citizens, if we resort to the only means to be employed, those means which are at length determined upon and are being adopted, with the position and this statement—and upon that statement it is that we elucidate the cogency of the position—that the duty of the armies of the United States at this present moment is to declare that the war must be brought readily to a successful conclusion. Say that we have 4,000,000 of whites at the North; add to them 1,700,000 blacks at the South, and you have 5,700,000 engaged in this war for the Union, and a very large proportion of this number engaged in the enemy's country,—familiar with its fastnesses,—men who of all others would be most valuable to us as adjuncts—most useful as auxiliaries. The South would then be reduced to 1,300,000 men, and we would then stand relatively to the South as five and three-quarters to one and one-third, or as nine to two. In that result there is success. [Loud applause.] In no other result can it be found. It is, therefore, only when you have invoked the aid and assistance of that portion of the Southern strength which is disaffected toward the rebellion, and which is able and willing to war for free institutions, that this war is to be fought successfully and won. [Loud cheers.] There was a time when even this statement would have been received with doubt. That time has passed. Our armies accept the truth; our citizens receive its strength; and, united upon that point, there will be cogency in their united application and vigorous action in their onward stride, which will teach mankind and the world on the other side of the Atlantic, that the American people have at length determined to finish and conclude the war which the rebellion has thrust upon them. I have occupied your attention longer than I intended. I purpose now to give way to the speakers who have been invited to address you this evening. They will engage your attention, and will speak of affairs (for some of them are from the Southern States) familiar to them at their own firesides. And I am sure from what we will learn here this evening, we who compose this Loyal National League will be prepared from this time henceforth, through its organization, to teach the world that the American people are in earnest. [Loud applause.]

At the conclusion of Gen. COCHRANE'S remarks, Mr. DODGE reported, in behalf of the Committee, a series of by-laws, with the following

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

The report closes thus:

The Committee further report that Clubs have been formed, and are now forming, in various of the Wards of this City, under the pledge of the Loyal National League, and in some instances delegates have been appointed to coöperate with delegates from other Wards, and it is desirable to bind in a common union all the Associations which accepting this pledge evince a desire to affiliate together; they therefore recommend that the Executive Committee be instructed to give their first attention to the perfecting of a scheme, whereby all such Clubs may be properly represented in this organization.

And they further recommend that the Executive Committee report at the first meeting of the Association a suitable badge of the National colors.

(Signed) W. E. DODGE,
B. F. MUDGETT,
GEORGE P. NELSON,
MARK HOYT,
Committee on Organization.

The report having been adopted, an individual in the audience asked whether the object of this meeting in any way differed from that of the one held last Saturday night at the Academy, to which the President replied:

"No, Sir, in no possible way. Our hopes, our determinations, are identical, and any differences which can arise between us and them, will but serve as an incentive to a more perfect struggle for a common purpose." [Applause.]

The President then, in highly complimentary terms, introduced Hon. A. J. HAMILTON, of Texas, who said:

SPEECH OF HON. ANDREW JACKSON HAMILTON.

Mr. HAMILTON was received with most flattering demonstrations of welcome, and commenced by saying that had he been disposed to deal justly by himself, he would not have been present on this occasion. Recent indisposition had admonished him that he was not able this evening to meet their great expectations. Nevertheless, in obedience to the wishes of friends, he was here to bear testimony to what he believed to be the basis upon which this Government ought to prosecute this war to a successful conclusion. He could not better do this than by indorsing every word Mr. COCHRANE had so eloquently uttered. [Applause.] If there was any change he would make it would not be by detracting from a single suggestion, but it would be, had he the capacity, by adding immeasurably to those suggestions, if by so doing he could infuse additional vigor into the public mind. He believed the purpose of this meeting to indorse the objects of this League, and if the men whose names were on the paper before him were organized into an army, there were enough to redeem this State. He understood the object to be to declare the unalterable determination of every one whose name was there recorded to stand by the Government in all its constitutional efforts to suppress the rebellion. [Applause.] What are those efforts to be? By levying armies, as a matter of course; by furnishing means to equip those armies; by putting them in the field and sustaining them while there. Unquestionably all would agree to that—all loyal men, because unfortunately there were men in this part of the country who believed the best way to suppress a rebellion is to cease fighting the rebels. [Laughter, and a voice, "Bully Brooks."] It was the purpose of those who signed to sustain the Congress of the United States in all measures that have been adopted in its wisdom for giving power to the Executive and officers of his army. [Applause.] It was their determination to no longer carp about this being a war against the institution of Slavery. It was a very strange thing, to his mind, how any man capable of reading the current events of the day, and of appreciating the causes of this rebellion—how any such man could find it in his heart to withdraw even temporarily his support from the Government, because it had at last determined to strike down the thing that had attacked the integrity of the Government. [Applause.] If the Administration made war upon Slavery, what was it made war upon the Government? What pretended interest growing out of any institution was the cause or pretext of this war? He said pretext, because there had not been any aggression on the part of the people of the non-slaveholding States against the South to justify the rebellion. It was in the first place because Slavery had determined either to rule or ruin the country—[A voice, "That's so"]—and second, because they had induced innocent and ignorant men in the South to believe that they had been greatly wronged, and that there was an intention to destroy Slavery. The leaders had had this rebellion smouldering in their hearts for more than thirty years, confiding their secret only to those whom they deemed worthy to be trusted with it. In the words of YANCEY, they had waited the time to fire the Southern heart upon some pretext, and watched the favorable moment to precipitate the Cotton States into revolution. He did not regret the necessity of crushing Slavery in order to put down this rebellion. [Applause.] He did not wait for the President's Proclamation, but took his position at the start, for men who could inaugurate a rebellion like this, against the blessings of such a Government, making Slavery the pretext, that moment unalterably fixed him against that institution forever. [Applause.] Suppose they could reëstablish the Union, by putting down the rebellion and preserving Slavery, did they believe that they could ever make slave-owners love them more than they ever did before? [Voices, "No, no."] Did they believe they could make slaveowners less confident of preserving their institution, had they forborne to crush it as the cause of the rebellion. [Voices—"No, no."] Did they believe it was in the range of probability that the loyal men of the South could live in peace with these devils who have risen against the Government. [Voices—"No, no."] Then if they did not love traitors more than loyal men, they would preserve the latter and destroy the support of the former. He would not speak of his own sufferings, but of the outrages they had committed on his friends and neighbors, and said that their constitutional rights could not be preserved by preserving an institution by which they had been compelled to bow down for the last ten years. [Voices—"That's so."] Even WASHINGTON could not have uttered in the South sentiments which he had put upon record, without being hung as high as Haman. He spoke of the Northern men who had been sacrificed in the South, on account of their devotion to the Union; of the 4,000 men who had been driven out of his State; of the unoffending females who had been maltreated; and asked if they were willing to preserve an institution which thus attacked the very temple of liberty itself. [Applause.] He had been charged with being guided by his resentments, and admitted that he sprang at once into an Abolitionist. [Applause.] He loved the Government because he had received nought but blessings from it. What had Slavery done for him? It had driven him from his home and held his wife and children captive. Ought he not to devote the remnant of his life to wage war against it? [Applause.] Would they restore the institution which has caused the rebellion? [Voices—"No," "No."] It had been suggested in high quarters to restore the Union, by permitting JEFFERSON DAVIS and his compeers to return to the Senate Chamber of the United States—[Voices—"No," "No;" "Hang them."]—but, he said, they could never restore to the councils of the nation such men, without sinking its hopes forever. [Applause.] Would they restore the man whose arms were plunged to his shoulders in the blood of their children and their neighbors—who would exterminate the last man, woman and child in the loyal States in order to succeed in his hellish rebellion—the man who had told them repeatedly, who had taken occasion to tell them through his little council, called a Government, every six days, that he would not live with them in political fellowship; [Voices—"We don't want them;"] that he would not unite with them, except under an unconditional recognition of the rebellious States, and added to them Maryland, Kentucky, Missouri and Virginia? Voices—"Never, never."] And yet men talk about compromising with such men, and invite them back to the Senate chamber of the United States, and talk about their constitutional rights—all the constitutional rights they had were forfeited, and the only remaining one was for them, if caught, to be executed for their offences. [Great applause.] If an unscrupulous assassin were to attack him, were to have a dagger at his throat, and he should fortunately get possession of it, he would not exactly restore it. [Laughter.] He thought he would have the manliness to use it upon the assassin. [Applause.] This Government was attacked, and there was a determination to crush it, and was it not a shame that men at this time would talk about the wickedness of this Government in making war upon the South. Now some men, with exceedingly small heads, [Voices, "Copperheads,"] small men with small heads, talk about the tyranny of this Government. He knew that history would record it as a foul lie and slander. [Applause.] This Government never invited war upon the part of the South, but waited until the National Capital was nigh being lost. He recollected that on leaving Washington immediately after the inauguration of the President, that every hamlet and village, and town and city in the South swarmed with soldiers, preparing for an attack upon the Government. They knew that the first Secretary of War of JEFFERSON DAVIS, POPE WALKER, declared in a public speech at Montgomery, Ala., that they would have the Capital at Washington in their possession. It was the open boast of every one in the South that they had so managed the preceding Administration; that they had the power, and they meant to use it. He would not mention any names; that would not be right on this occasion; he knew their minds would not revert to Secretary FLOYD. [Laughter.] Alluding to the objections to arbitrary arrests, he said he supposed those gentlemen imagined that the object of the framers of the Constitution was to show how long a Government could exist that had not the power to protect itself against any enemy from without or within. [Laughter.] It was a common assertion in the South, that the Government was not based on inherent strength; that it was a failure because it was not a strong Government. He had always told them he believed they would find it strong enough for common use. [Applause.] Why was it that the Constitution conferred upon the President powers for the suppression of insurrection or rebellion, or invasion, if it did not intend that he at the head of its armies and navies should employ the whole power of the country, if necessary, to accomplish that great object. It had been charged that the Government had now and then made a mistake in arresting a man who did not say as much as he ought to have said to make his neighbors believe he was loyal. He held that every man ought to speak out, and that if he didn't speak out he ought to be suspected. While the Government had millions of traitors with arms against it, it had one-third as many more at home going about complaining that there was a man arrested now and then—though not one had been executed. The very fact of a man going about and making such complaints was an evidence that he had. [Applause.] If this Government had been a tyranny the heads of those men would have rolled from the block long ago. [Applause.] If they did not talk treason it was quasi treason. Mr. LINCOLN might have made mistakes, but he was not a despot. He, (the speaker) had complained to the Secretary of War of certain things, and the Secretary replied "that is nothing, it happens in the City of Washington every day." He replied, "somebody here don't do his duty." [Applause.] If men, in the very shadow of the White House could utter treason and be allowed to be at large, no man in his senses could say that this was a despotic Government. He was glad that the people were waking up. He did not doubt that the great mass of the people, however latent, and lukewarm their feelings, were at heart loyal, and that they would give the Government their loyal support, to sustain it in all its constitutional efforts, and to sweep away all opposition to the Government, or to the popular will. Men in high places had been engaged in wily diplomacy to defeat, for a time, the success of one public servant engaged in an enterprise in one part of the country. Let such men learn from the history of the past. The people would easily recognize the men who had done their duty. [Applause.] They would remember that when this country was engaged in a foreign war, one noble old soldier, regardless of the machinations at home of those who were seeking for the Presidency, went straight on to victory. And, when the time came, the people took him up, and made him President over all the others. [Applause, and voices—"TAYLOR."] The men who thought that, because a man who was doing his duty in a distant part of the South might interfere with them, and must therefore be stricken down, might live to realize that the will of this people, when it is aroused, is omnipotent. [Applause.]

"The best-laid schemes o' mice and men

The people were telling our public servants that they were not afraid of foreign Powers, [applause,] even of the great nephew of his uncle. [Applause.] He knew that the masses of the people of England were with us. They remembered that this people, in the midst of their trials, after sending an army large enough to have conquered Europe a few years ago, had still found time to freight a ship with food for the starving operatives of England. [Applause.] And behold the response to it. It came back upon every vessel that reached our shores—the whole heart of the middle classes of England was loyal to the great principles of civil liberty, [applause,] and the great heart of Europe would still be with us, and we could say to our foes, "Do your worst." [Applause.] Had he it in his power he would not withhold, on the part of this Government, the expression of sympathy and aid, if need be, to our struggling neighbor, who was about to become the victim of the wily despot of France. [Applause.] He had thought so, before the thing began, and we would find that that was our truest policy. A leading man of that country said to him last Summer, that he realized at last that the Republicans of Mexico and the Republicans of the United States—the lovers of civil liberty—must fight this battle out shoulder to shoulder; that Slavery had been the nightmare of our Government, and the priesthood of his; but before it ended we would find that the lovers of liberty throughout the world were with us, and the lovers of despotism would be arrayed in sympathy with the rebels against our Government. How true it had proved. Then, we did sympathize with Mexico; we did not want to see her overrun by LOUIS NAPOLEON. How long was it since he had dared to conceive it in his mind to cross the Atlantic to meddle in the affairs of any Government upon the continent of America? Would he have attempted it three years ago? ["No."] Would he have talked about it five years ago? It would have been worth his throne to have done it. But now we had got into a position that enabled him, in his judgment, to take advantage of us; we were struggling in a desperate war, and would not be able to give aid to Mexico we were not able to dictate to the world as to the sacredness of the institutions on this side of the water against their interference. Instead of planting ourselves on the Monroe doctrine, in the midst of our troubles we could be snubbed by LOUIS NAPOLEON proposing to have Commissioners from the Southern Confederacy meet our Commissioners on neutral ground to rearrange the American Senate, he supposed. [Hisses.]

If he had been the Premier of the great American Republic, he would have said: "There was a time when you would not have dared to say so much, and it gives to me the opportunity to say, you had better take counsel of those around you as to the speediest means of getting out of Mexico." [Applause.] We would have united the lovers of freedom throughout the world by such a proceeding. He did not know what the policy of that Government was; he only knew that it had come to us in no equivocal form, that but recently that Government had been intriguing with the Southern Confederacy for the sale of his State to France. The same man who represented France in Texas when he left was again on Mexican soil intriguing for the purchase of Texas, and yet he heard no word said by our Government, and he thought it was time something was said. He was as loyal to this Government as any man in the United States; he was loyal to the President because he was the President; he was loyal to him because he was the only President they had or could have for two years to come; if he had millions he would sustain him, and if he had more than one life, he would give them all to sustain him. [Applause.] But he was not bound to sustain the policy of those surrounding him, and who were dictating to him, and he thought the people had the right to rise up and dictate the true course of the Government in regard to its internal difficulties, and they would not be true to the country until they determined it in their judgment, and exercised it for the Government of the country. [Applause.] He desired to say a few words, directed mainly to his section of the country. He believed that if there was a man within the limits of the United States, who had cause to feel disappointed, from time to time, he was at least one of these men—not on his own account, for he had not been a suppliant for anything, and therefore not disappointed in his own person, excepting to the extent that he had been deprived of the gratification of seeing the country he loved so much redeemed from its present condition. On the 4th of December last he sailed from our port, if not a happy man, at least bouyant in heart. He was connected with an expedition he had been taught to believe had been gotten up and fitted out for the relief of Texas. He had been without solicitation on his part put in commission, and connected with that expedition with the declaration oft repeated that it was going there, and he knew no better until he arrived in New-Orleans. Now, as a matter of course, feeling an interest in the loyal people of the State of Texas, his mission here being to procure relief and means for the government of it, and believing that that object had been effected, it was his simple duty to hurry the news to them as fast as possible that relief was coming. In the meantime many of them had been run out of the country and had been waiting patiently on the other side of the Rio Grande. They were told that they were coming—they got it through the public prints, and they took measures accordingly—they got up organizations preparatory to joining the Federal forces as soon as they landed. But when it was found out that there was no aid coming—when it was found out by the rebels that the force was to operate on the Mississippi River and not in Texas, they could imagine what consequence it was to the Union men who had manifested some pleasure at the arrival of aid. He had no means of knowing how many, but he knew that some hundreds lost their lives in consequence of that disappointment; he knew that they had died deaths that had not been heard of since the dark ages until now—they were hanged, shot, murdered—some tied up and scalded to death with boiling water; they had been torn asunder by having wild horses tied to their feet—whole neighborhoods were exterminated and torches applied to their dwellings,—they were hung by twenties, and the work was still going on. He asked the great people of New-York how long that ought to go on? Men had been dying for twenty months by way of justifying their devotion to the Government. He asserted, and history would bear him out, that a people never had borne more by way of testifying their devotion to any Government that had existed among men. It had been said that no men in the South were loyal except black men; he was there to dispute it tonight—it was not true. More than half of the white men were loyal when the rebellion began, and more than half would return to it if they could. While the Government had blockaded their ports, and shutting out from all the people goods such as they had been in the habit of consuming, the whole Rio Grande country had been open, and the rebel Government had been for many months compelling them to sell their cotton to them, and their horses and teams were seized to transport it to the Rio Grande, and then they received gold for it, and there the rebels were receiving their supplies. It was time the people had said to the Government, "This thing has been neglected long enough." It seemed to him that he called upon the people to-night to give an expression of opinion upon that great subject. He would say if it was never done it would never crush his devotion to his Government, [applause,] although it might be the loss of the last friend he had under Heaven; but he would think that some men had been to blame who had surrounded the Government, if it was not done. There was a reason why France wanted to get possession of Texas—he would not go into figures, but he would satisfy any person who was skeptical. There were rich cotton lands enough in that State, if put under successful cultivation, to produce more cotton—four times more—than is now produced on the continent of America. It was a country twice as large as France, with minerals beyond the knowledge of any man now living—teeming with wealth, and if they would still hold her in sisterhood it would be poured into our lap. He asked them to give him one word of encouragement to-night—all that remained was for the people to lift Texas out of the mud and mire and place her firmly upon the rock of ages. [Applause.]

At the conclusion of Mr. HAMILTON'S speech, Hon. ROSCOE CONKLING, M.C., was introduced.

SPEECH OF HON. ROSCOE CONKLING.

He said there were many reasons why he would like to have been simply listener, but still, if he had a hundred tongues, each trumpet-tongued, he would like to greet with them the vast assemblage before him. [Applause.] They came to the meeting as men and women, having a right to contest for the best Government the world ever saw. For what did our ancestors suffer eighty years ago? They suffered in order to plant the constitutional tree of liberty where it should bloom in eternal youth—to plant here religious, political and civil liberty. They did plant that tree on this Continent, and watered it with their blood. The present struggle was for mastery by force of arms. It was not proposed by the meeting to fire a bullet at the enemy, or to cut him with the sword. It has been said that New-York was weary of the war, and that the North was losing confidence in the Administration, and it was for the purpose of showing to the world that the Northern people were for their country that these Leagues have organized. It was the voice of loyal multitudes that would tell to our enemies that they were ready to relinquish State rights and State institutions in order to preserve the Republic. [Applause.] If necessary they were prepared to see Vicksburgh and Charleston and Richmond heaps of smoking ruins. [Applause.] He would rather see desolation reign from the Potomac to the Gulf than that one star should be blotted from the American flag or one stripe torn from its azure fold. [Applause.] He did not approve of everything the Administration had done, but there was one thing it had done which deserved the approval of all—it has shown a determination to crush the rebellion. The question of arming negroes and dealing with negroes had been more prostituted than anything else which had entered into the demagogism of the day. The wildest fancies had been paraded before the people to mislead them on this subject, and they had been misled and made to believe that the country was being impoverished to emancipate the negro race. The workingmen, the laboring men—men who sustained the dignity and aristocracy of labor in the country—[applause]—had been told by men who ought to have been above it—[A voice, "THURLOW WEED."] "My friend speaks in an unknown tongue," said the speaker; "I have in mind another gentleman, who was understood to be a candidate for the Presidency, and who is opposed to the war in spite of some half-way declarations to the contrary. It was to prevent the wild surges of anarchy from dashing over their thresholds that they were called upon to display the manhood that was within them. He cautioned them not to forget that we had been carrying on a war of invasion, and not to overlook the vast impediments which we consequently had to contend against. God did not mean that a nation like ours should die in the morning of its life. The despots of Europe and the rebel leaders of the South will know that the twenty million loyal people of the North are true to the last to the land of their birth. [Applause.] In conclusion, he would say that the Union and the institutions of these States will be preserved inviolate forever over every foot of rightful jurisdiction. [Applause.]

At the conclusion of Mr. CONKLING'S speech, Senator FOSTER, of Connecticut, was introduced, who made some brief remarks relative to the political controversies existing in the State which he represented, and entreated every citizen of Connecticut to go home and do what he could toward counteracting the influences which were at work to defeat the efforts of loyal men.

The Chairman then offered some explanatory remarks, referring to the object of the meeting, after which the audience dispersed.

WHOM TO TRUST.—It is a fact that certain persons lie, steal, rob and murder; and it is equally true that others are truthful, honest and kindly. But how may we know "who is who?" Answer—First, learn the "organization" of the individual. Has he cautiousness? Has he well-developed moral sentiments? Or, do the lower propensities preponderate? Are secretiveness and acquisitiveness over large? You would not make him your confidential clerk, nor your cashier. It would not only be imprudent, but wicked, to place a person of weak moral sentiments in a place of great responsibility, who cannot withstand temptations. Messrs. FOWLER & WELLS give professional advice daily, at their Phrenological Rooms, at No. 308 Broadway.
